MEXICANS ATTACK U. S. CAVALRY

JURY TO TRY WAITE COMPLETED

MRS. CARPENTER ADMITS SHE SMOKED

HUSBAND LIGHTED A CIGARETTE

Wife in Story in Divorce Case Says Carpenter Always Started Her Smokes; Powdered Her Nose

Concord, N. H., May 22.—Mrs. Margaret Paul Carpenter admitted on the witness stand today in the divorce suit of her husband, Major Ralph G. Carpenter, that she smoked cigarettes, powdered her nose, "whitewashed" her arms and neck, drank a little and put lemon juice on her hair.

She qualified these admissions by declaring that she powdered her nose because it was sunburned, smoked cigarettes with her husband, that he did the "white washing" because the liquid powder did not come off, and that she never drank until after her marriage.

Mrs. Carpenter further testified that she never wore gowns designed to show her figure, and that all her dresses were modest. She denied crossing her legs, and admitted that she had called her husband a liar and crazy.

Q.—Did your husband object about your powdering your face while at Narragansett Pier? A.—Yes. I told him I would not do it any more, but my nose was so sunburned that I had to. He did not discover it, anyway, until two or three days after I had been putting it on.

Q.—Now, when you sat at the table with the other young ladies, did you observe that they used powder on their faces? A.—Yes, they all used it for their sunburn.

Q.—Didn't your husband observe them also? A.—Yes, and he remarked that he thought they were fine-looking girls.

Q.—Did you bleach your hair while at Wolfboro? A.—I read once in a magazine that by applying lemon

Vindication Ample for Miss Johnson, Won't Seek $3,465

Ralph H. Willard, attorney for Miss Laura L. Johnson, who was awarded a verdict for $3,465 in her $20,000 breach of promise suit against the Rev. Charles Chase Wilson, last week announced today that no attempt would be made to collect the amount awarded.

"We knew the Rev. Mr. Wilson had no money when we brought the suit," he said. "We sought only vindication."

Attorneys for the pastor have filed a motion to set aside the verdict.

Billy Sunday Sure to Win "Grafters," Dr. Myers Predicts

Billy Sunday's coming will stir up political consciences, and cause the return of much graft, according to the Rev. Cortland Myers, pastor of Tremont Temple, in his address today in Chipman Hall before the Baptist ministers.

"Let every politician know that a powerful individual is coming to Boston," said Dr. Myers, "to sharpen up this political conscience, so that if money has been taken by graft, it will come back to Boston in unsigned letters and then Boston streets will be repaired.

"Whether this is so or not, let us get every pastor of Greater Boston stirred up and keep them stirred up until they have got rid of their cold feet.

"Boston business men are spending two hours or more a week in considering plans for the Billy Sunday campaign. These business men are selling us an excellent example," he continued. "They have found what the coming of Billy Sunday means to Boston and they are glad to help. We pastors of the church must get a move on. Charge the air of Boston with Billy Sunday thunder."

INDIANS PURSUING AMERICAN FORCES

By WALLACE E. SMITH,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

El Paso, Tex., May 22.—Four hundred Yaqui Indians, fiercest fighters in the Mexican army of General Obregon, today pressed close upon the American punitive expedition sent into Mexico from the Big Bend district as the United States soldiers withdrew to the border. The punitive expedition consists of only 500 men, including a machine gun squad, but ready to dash to their aid, if the Yaquis should force a battle, are two more troops of the Sixth Cavalry, which arrived at Marathon this morning.

INSANITY PLEA FOR DENTIST DENIED BY GIRL

Presence of Alienists in Court as Trial in Poison Case Opens Points to Bitter Struggle

By International News Service.

New York, May 22.—In record-breaking time the jury which will decide the guilt or innocence of Dr. Arthur Warren Waite, on the charge of murdering his father-in-law, John E. Peck, was selected. Before court recessed for luncheon the jury box was filled.

The jury is as follows:

ROBERT NEILL, mechanical engineer.
PETER REBEL, cheese dealer.
THADDEUS S. BARLOW, superintendent Consolidated Gas Co.
PAUL D. F. CASE, secretary.
GEORGE A. HOLME, capitalist.
JAMES H. BETTS, sales manager.
EDWIN M. FRIEDLANDER, broker.
THOMAS WIDDRECOMBE, accountant.
JAMES E. JEFFARES, manager.
STEPHEN A. DOUGLAS, electric engineer.
HUGH P. DONNELLY, real estate dealer.
JOSEPH H. TRANT, writer.

Throughout the examination of talesmen Dr. Waite sat with his face calm and his manner assured. He did not even flinch when one talesman said:

"I am opposed to capital punishment, but not in this case."

He half-smiled as the talesman was excused.

WATCHES TALESMEN.

Dr. Waite came into court and took a seat without showing any trace of the nervousness from which the prison physician said he has been suffering for several days. He was natty attired in a blue suit that had been carefully pressed.

Mrs. Waite, who arrived shortly after court opened, sat alone in District-Attorney Swann's office. She will not come into the courtroom, it was said, until her presence is required as a witness.

The defendant gave a casual glance about the room as his case was called and then sat quietly beside his law-

TROTH IS DENIED BY GIRL

Celeste Youker, in Remarkable Interview With Dorothy Dix, Says That Boy Is Innocent

By DOROTHY DIX.

Waukegan, Ill., May 22.—The most appealing figure in the whole Orpet case is that of Celestia Youker, a beautiful and innocent young girl, who, through no fault of her own, has been thrust into the lurid limelight that plays about a sensational murder trial.

Miss Youker is the "other woman," who helps form the human triangle on which this tragedy rests. According to the prosecution she supplies the motive for the crime, for it is alleged that it was Orpet's love for her and his desire to be free to prosecute his suit to her that induced him to make way with poor little Marian Lambert, when she and her clinging affection had become a weariness and a bore to him and stood in the way of his happiness.

Not only has Miss Youker been an appealing and sympathetic figure but she has been a mysterious figure as well, for since the day on which Marian Lambert was found dead in the snow in the Helm Woods and Orpet was charged with having slain her, Miss Youker has been the unknown quantity in the case.

She has been as silent and as invisible as a wraith. No one save her intimates has seen her.

Hughes Against the Field Now, But Strength of the Colonel Worries the Republican Leaders

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, May 22.—Hughes against the field.

That was the line-up today in the Republican political situation. Only sixty out of the 985 delegates to the convention, which meets in Chicago, the week after next, remain to be chosen.

Favorite sons hold 308 of these. The balance are uninstructed.

But the politicians here who claim to have their ears, declare that a strong Hughes sentiment is entertained by a majority of unpledged. The shadow of Theodore Roosevelt still is hung heavy over the Chicago gathering. It is admitted by political wiseacres that many leaders, while hating him, will support him, should the Roosevelt movement at any time seem to be getting seriously formidable.

In the face of the claims made of greatly increasing strength on the part of the Roosevelt movement, the "show me" political leaders on the ground here insist that most of it is "froth and fuss." But they are plain-

TAKE THREE MEN AND 2 WOMEN IN DRUG RAID

The biggest drug raid conducted by the Boston police in years came to light today when three women and two men were arraigned in the Municipal Court charged with having hypnotic drugs in their possession. One of the men was also charged with selling drugs.

Angello Orena, twenty-four, known to the police as the "gentlemanly drug seller," was charged with selling drugs and with having them in his possession. His case, with that of Elizabeth O'Connell, who was charged with having drugs in her possession, was continued until next Monday.

Florence Gibbs and Grace E. Morland were found guilty. The Gibbs woman was given a three months' suspended sentence, while the other woman was placed on probation. John M. Scott was found guilty and sentenced to four months in the House of Correction.

The arrests were made by Sergeant Irwin, who was assisted by Detectives Morrissey and other officers of the East Dedham street station. As a result of information they went to the room of Florence Gibbs in Worcester street, South End.

While in the room Orena called. He had an eighteen-inch leather bag in his possession. When questioned, he declared that he was selling jewelry. Sergeant Irwin seized the bag. He opened it and found thirty-two packages of cocaine, five boxes of morphine, a needle and a hypodermic syringe. According to the police, he then admitted his guilt.

At Orena's room, Waltham street, the police found Elizabeth O'Connell and Grace E. Morand. The police declared in court that one of the women was snuffing cocaine, while the other tried to conceal three packages of hypnotic drugs.

In court, Sergeant Irwin stated that the drugs in Orena's possession were valued at $200.

DRIVE ON PUBLIC SERVICE BOARD IS CHECKED

The drive against the Public Service Commission was turned back today when the legislative Ways and Means Committee in executive session voted to report a bill assessing the cost or expense of the commission, excepting the salaries of commissioners, upon railroads, railways and telephone and telegraph corporations that come under the jurisdiction of the commission.

This bill is to be reported as a substitute for the bill which would abolish the present commission of five members and would set up a new commission of three members in its place.

Representatives Murphy of Lowell and Harry of Rockland will dissent from the committee report, as they believe the expense should be borne by the state. Representative Fitzgerald of Ward 8, a committee member who was absent when the vote was taken, is also expected to dissent.

Governor McCall, in his inaugural message, recommended the appointment of a legislative committee to investigate the Public Service Commission and make reductions if necessary.

AMERICAN SOLDIER MISSING

Pershing Reports New Clash at Santa Ysabel, Scene of Late Massacre by the Mexicans

By International News Service.

San Antonio, Tex., May 22.—Mexican bandits attacked a detachment of the Seventh United States Cavalry west of Santa Ysabel on Friday. The bandits were driven off after a hot fight, but Private Strong was missing after the conflict.

An official report on the fight was received from General Pershing today at Fort Sam Houston, General Funston's headquarters.

Santa Ysabel, near which the fight occurred, was the scene of the massacre of a number of Americans by Villistas a few months ago. The district, though nominally under Carranista control, is filled with Villista sympathizers.

The fact that the Mexicans attacked the American troops shows that the Mexicans are becoming bolder in their operations. Spies among the civilian population probably keep the bandits informed of the troops' movements.

General Pershing sent his report from Namiquipa, which is considerably north of Santa Ysabel district.

General Funston has asked Washington for additional coast guard forces for duty on the Mexican border. No reply has yet been received, but General Funston will press his request and is also expected to ask for more cavalry and infantry. The coast guards are wanted for stations in the Big Bend district, leaving the other troops free for active service in protecting the border.

It is known at Fort Bliss that the Sixth Cavalry troopers have already started for Boquillas, whence Colonel Sibley and Major Langhorne led their force into Mexico and through which

FRENCH REPORT GAINS BOTH SIDES OF MEUSE

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, May 22.—French gains on both sides of the Meuse River were announced today in the War Office communique.

Following a terrific bombardment which lasted for days and nights, the Germans attempted to press forward in Avocourt Wood, northwest of Verdun, but their advance was checked by the French.

At Le Mort Homme (Dead Man Hill) strong counter-attacks by the French won back some of the ground lost to the Germans on Saturday night.

To the east of the Meuse the Germans counter-attacked at Haudromont in an attempt to reconquer lost positions, but the assaults were repulsed by the French.

A night attack by the French in the sector of Vaux put General Neville's troops in possession of a German trench. There was fierce hand-to-hand fighting in the darkness under the glare of star bombs.

OCCUPY BLOCKHOUSES.

The text of the official communique follows:

"South of Berry-au-Bac we successfully set off two mines at Hill 108.

"In Champagne a gas attack made by the Germans in the zone lying between the road from Souain to Somme-Py, and the road from St. Hilaire to St. Souplet, was unsuccessful. A sudden shift of wind defeated the gas clouds upon the enemy's trenches.

"On the left bank of the Meuse infantry action continued during the night. In Avocourt wood our grenadiers gained some advantage and occupied several blockhouses which the enemy had evacuated. In the region west of Le Mort Homme the conflict was particularly bitter. Several efforts made by the enemy to increase his progress were shattered by our curtains of fire and our machine guns. A strong attack made by our troops enabled us to recapture part of the ground lost on the night of May 20.

"On the right bank the Germans made several assaults, counter-attacking the positions at Haudromont forest which were taken by us yesterday. All their attacks were checked by our fire and resulted only in heavy losses for the enemy. On the outskirts of the village of Vaux, a small operation executed this morning made us masters of a German trench. At Eparges several German mines were exploded without causing us any damage.

DESTROY SIX BALLOONS.

"On the region of Verdun our aeroplanes attacked captive balloons used by the Germans. Six were brought down in flames.

"In the course of an aerial combat one of our pilots brought down a German aeroplane in the region of Eparges. Two other aeroplanes, attacked by ours, fell and disappeared, one in the enemy's line near the Liancourt ditch, near Ronvaux, the other within our lines at Fontaine, west of Soloeuvre.

"Enemy aeroplanes threw bombs on Dunkirk this morning.

"On the night of May 20 and May 21 many operations were carried out by squadrons of our bombarding aeroplanes. Shells were successfully thrown on the railway station at Metz-Sablons, Avricourt and Noye; on munition depots at Biaches and Chapelette, on camps in the region of Jassans and the village of Jamiets, where an important post of command had been installed. In addition two of our dirigibles showered with bombs the railway stations and the railway at Brieulles and Dun."

WAR SUMMARY

Persistent attacks by the Germans have at length put the greater portions of Hill 304 and Dead Man's Hill in their hands, official reports today indicate. The reports, applied to the map of this region, show this to be true.

Hill 304 lies southwest of Dead Man's Hill, a narrow valley separating them. The French speak of fighting "west of Dead Man's Hill" and "east of Hill 304."

Fighting "east of Hill 304" is by the same token south or southwest of Dead Man's Hill; and the German bulletin make this more positive by announcing successes "on the south and southwest slopes of Dead Man's Hill."

The German attack has been driven between the two hills; and it is now cutting in behind each one. Unless a decisive check is administered to the Teutons, the two hills must shortly be in their hands. The French themselves have called these two hills "the key to Verdun." Their control by the Germans would be the severest possible blow to Verdun's defenders, short of reduction of the fortress itself.

The importance of recent German successes is further emphasized by the German announcement that some 1,300 prisoners were taken. When prisoners run over a thousand, a considerable advance by the attackers is a fair inference.

The Italians have thus far been unable to rally and stop the Austrian advance. At both ends of the battle line the Austrians have carried the fighting into Italian territory. The total of prisoners taken by the Austrians has passed 16,000, and the Italians are beginning to send out from Rome rumors and reports of a great allied offensive on all fronts, to counteract the moral effect of their own reverses.

The Italian frontier is exceedingly vulnerable. One of Italy's reasons for going to war was to wipe out the strong and mountainous salient, tipped by Lake Garda, which the Tyrol thrust into Italian territory. Now Austria is taking advantage of that salient; and a thrust from the end of it, if successful, will cut off the northeastern end of Italy at a line running northwest from Venice.

The date of the "great allied offensive" predicted by Rome is set at July 15 by Americans preparing to go to the front from Canada as Canadian troops.

Verdun and the Tyrol were the only important spots on the war map today. A Russian cavalry squadron has joined the British force in Mesopotamia after what the British official statement calls a "bold and adventurous ride." But there is no particular reason why the Russians should not have done this some time ago, as the Turkish main forces are concentrated on a line roughly due north from Kut-el-Amara, and there were none to hinder any rides the Russians chose to make along the frontier.

Unimportant skirmishes ruled along the British lines; and the same was true in the Caucasus.

PUT REVOLT BLAME ON BIRRELL

By International News Service.

London, May 22.—Responsibility for conditions in Ireland was put up to Augustine Birrell, former Secretary for Ireland, by Lord Wimborne, former Lord-Lieutenant, when the latter testified today before the Royal Commission investigating the causes and responsibilities of the Sinn Fein uprising in Dublin.

"The powers of the Lord-Lieutenant were entirely usurped by the Chief Secretary (Mr. Birrell)," declared Lord Wimborne on the stand.

Lord Wimborne told the commission that he had no executive machinery with which to take action independent of his colleagues in office, nor any means of asserting his views.

"REDMOND'S LIFE IN DANGER."

Lord Wimborne declared that he, too, had pressed the War Office to send troops to Dublin, telling Earl Kitchener that the Irish garrison had been inadequate ever since the departure of an Irish division for the front.

"The internal situation in Ireland was aggravated as a reason for demanding reinforcements," said the former Lord-Lieutenant. "Mr. Birrell also advocated more soldiers in Dublin. Early this year the police reports showed that the Sinn Fein movement was growing in numbers and rifles, and I suggested its internment or deportation for the disturbers."

The witness declared that when he asked Viscount French for soldiers for Ireland he received the reply that the War Office objected to sending a division, as that would delay sending the troops to the front.

It was brought out that Mr. Birrell was warned that a traffic in rifles had grown up between the enemy and the Sinn Feiners. Testimony also showed that John E. Redmond had been warned that "the situation had grown so desperate that his life was in danger."

"Who gave General French the British commander in Ireland pretense to the revolt) permission to leave Ireland on the Thursday before the uprising?" asked Lord Hardinge.

"I don't know," Lord Wimborne answered. "It is part of the system in Ireland. Every one seems to go away independent of every one else."

ORDER ARREST OF LEADERS.

Lord Wimborne said he strongly urged that the Sinn Feiners be arrested, and that when the outbreak occurred he wrote to Mr. Birrell: "The worst has happened just when we thought we had it averted. If only we had acted last night with decision and arrested the leaders, as I wanted to do, it might have been averted."

The declaration of Birrell, that he asked for British troops in Ireland to overawe the Sinn Feiners, but was refused by the War Department, was denied in a letter which he read when the commission met. The letter, which was written by Adjutant-General Macready of the British army, was read by Lord Hardinge, secretary of the Irish commander-in-chief. It stated that a conference had been held at the War Office on April 6, at which Mr. Birrell and Lord Wimborne, former Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, took part, but at which, solely to the recruiting situation.

According to Adjutant-General Macready, a proposal was made at that time to send troops to Ireland, but the purpose was declared to stimulate recruiting and not to put fear of the British government into the hearts of the Irish Volunteers, as the armed organization of the Sinn Feiners was known.

The War Office turned down the proposal because it did not consider that the results would be equal to the work and delay.

It was admitted that Mr. Birrell afterwards conferred with Viscount French, commander-in-chief of the home forces, but, so far as the War Office knows, no action was taken as to the sending of troops to Dublin.

The writer of the letter went on to say:

"Mr. Birrell's visit had no reference to the sending of troops to Ireland for quelling any anticipated rebellion, although, if the soldiers had been sent for recruiting work, they would naturally have been available for all emergencies."

LORD MIDDLETON HEARD.

Lord Middleton, former Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, testified he took up the Irish situation in November, 1914, with Lord Wimbourne and afterwards raised the question in the House of Peers, but was cautioned by the Marquis of Crewe that he was doing the country a bad service by making such matters public."

Lord Middleton said that this was the reason he did not bring up the Irish question again in Parliament.

"Later," said the witness, "I strongly urged Mr. Birrell to bring about the disarmament of the National Volunteers, who were really Sinn Feiners, and refuse to allow them to parade. Mr. Birrell replied that the movement was to be laughed at and not taken seriously. Mr. Birrell gave his own idea of the situation by saying: 'I keep on the whole thing.'"

John E. Redmond and John Dillon were both against taking notice of seditious utterances in Ireland, on the ground that opposition would only increase them, Lord Middleton said:

"Mr. Birrell was convinced there would be no armed uprising, but I frankly told him he was pursuing a dangerous course," said the witness.

Margaret Horton Tells of Studio Life with Waite

By MARGARET HORTON.

(Second of a series of articles written exclusively for the Boston American and other Hearst newspapers by the "confidential mate" of Dr. Arthur Warren Waite, who was put on trial today for the murder of his millionaire father-in-law, John E. Peck.)

When Dr. Waite first stepped me outside the stage door of the Academy of Music last Winter, with no politics apparent and no interest in my voice, why, of course, I naturally thought that, at last, my fondest dream was about to come true.

Here was a well-spoken and very polite young man, who said he was a retired surgeon, had plenty of money and time, and had nothing to do with either but to hunt up and help along deserving young musicians. When he gave me his card and went away without attempting any more to make an appointment with me for another day, I naturally thought that the stranger was all he professed to be.

That was how I was first deceived. He knew how best to disarm a woman's first instinctive mistrust of a man met in this unconventional manner.

I went home that afternoon as happy as a lark. I thought of my mother's prophecy. Now I was going to get my great chance. I did not tell my husband of this meeting at first, because I was afraid that he would frown upon my plans.

TELLS HOW DR. WAITE WON HER CONFIDENCE.

The next day the Doctor turned up again at the same place. He again complimented me in a most flattering manner upon my voice, and apologetically made a few suggestions as to how I should carry myself on the stage. It was by these suggestions for my professional good that he won my confidence.

Dr. Waite possesses easy manners, has a really fine, small talk, and is of pleasing appearance. That is why having that I soon learned to like him in a way. Any girl would.

Nobody has wronged me more and has shown me less gratitude than Mrs. Dorothy Palmenberg. This woman, so many times befriended by my husband and myself, has said the cruellest and most wicked things about me. When the police had become suspicious of the deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Peck and were making inquiries, I am supposed, according to this woman's story, to have burst into her apartment in West Seventy-second street, and to have excitedly announced:

"Call up the doctor and see whether he is alive!"

That is most untrue. That is what really happened. When I confided in Dorothy Palmenberg, and I thought that she was my true friend, that I was the "woman of mystery" in the case, she exclaimed:

"Oh, what a romance! I wish I were you. I'm going to call him up. I want to hear the voice of a man who could do such a thing as this."

I did not know then that Dr. Waite had taken any of the sulphonal which I had purchased for him. Sulphonal is well known as a headache cure and as a drug to induce sleep anyway, and I never dreamed for a moment that he was going to try and end his life with it.

Mrs. Palmenberg has attempted to deceive the public as to my reasons for going to the studio. She principally handed over to the District Attorney the suitcase which I brought away from the Plaza and which contained a pair of pajamas and a Chinese mandarin's coat.

But she did not tell the District Attorney, however, that the mandarin's coat was wrapped in the paper parcel in which it was sent from the store when she first saw it. Nor did she say that the article was very much soiled, because she, Mrs. Palmenberg, had appropriated it and had worn it often herself.

HOW THE STUDIO WAS FURNISHED.

What was the studio like? What did we sing?

The Plaza studio was prettily furnished. There were beautiful curtains, a grand piano, handsome rugs, a couch, a cabinet of music, pictures of Mozart, Wagner, Handel and other great musicians on the walls.

Dr. Waite was an excellent musician. Our favorite music was perhaps the arias from "Aida," "Trovatore," "Carmen," and "Samson and Delilah." We were also very fond of the songs of Schubert and Schuman. I used to sing in French, Italian and German.

Yes, Dr. Waite fooled me—fooled me badly.

POISON PLOTTER ON TRIAL

jar, watching the veniremen as they were called. He did not recognize in any way his brother-in-law, Percy Peck.

Many women appeared at the courthouse hoping to attend the trial, but they were barred out by the guards on instructions from Justice Sheehy, who had forbidden the admission of the public until the jury was chosen.

Insanity will be Waite's defence. This became definitely known when Attorney Walter R. Deuel, counsel for the defendant, announced that Dr. Allan Rees Blessenbohl, a noted alienist, would testify in Waite's behalf.

There was a rumor in circulation about the courthouse that Waite's counsel will admit the commission of the crime, thereby saving the time necessary for the State to prove it.

The real battle will come over the question of Waite's sanity.

"Committed insanity," according to hints coming from the prisoner's friends and advisers, will be the defense offered.

"We all know about the compulsive impulse which actually handed over to the District Attorney the suitcase which I brought away from the Plaza and which contained a pair of pajamas and a Chinese mandarin's coat.

But she did not tell the District Attorney, however, that the mandarin's coat was wrapped in the paper parcel in which it was sent from the store when she first saw it. Nor did she say that the article was very much soiled, because she, Mrs. Palmenberg, had appropriated it and had worn it often herself.

HOW THE STUDIO WAS FURNISHED.

What was the studio like? What did we sing?

The Plaza studio was prettily furnished. There were beautiful curtains, a grand piano, handsome rugs, a couch, a cabinet of music, pictures of Mozart, Wagner, Handel and other great musicians on the walls.

Dr. Waite was an excellent musician. Our favorite music was perhaps the arias from "Aida," "Trovatore," "Carmen," and "Samson and Delilah." We were also very fond of the songs of Schubert and Schuman. I used to sing in French, Italian and German.

Yes, Dr. Waite fooled me—fooled me badly.

For Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

Here in America there is much suffering from catarrh and head noises. American people would do well to consider the method employed by the English to combat the insidious disease. Everyone knows how damp the English climate is and how dampness affects those suffering from catarrh. In England they treat catarrhal deafness and head noises as constitutional diseases and as a rule are successful, for it is really very efficacious.

Sufferers who could afford to pay a guinea and eight inches away from either ear.

Therefore, if you know someone who is troubled with catarrh, catarrhal deafness, head noises, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may be instrumental in saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be easily prepared at home for about 75c or 80c for the complete.

From your druggist obtain 1 oz. of Parmint (Parmint is the full name). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take a tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmint is used in this way not only to relieve the catarrh in the middle ear, and the results it gives are usually remarkably quick and effective.

Every person who has catarrh in any form should give this treatment a trial and free themselves from this destructive disease.—Advertisement.

PERSHING REPORTS TROOPER MISSING AFTER NEW ATTACK

the punitive expedition is expected to withdraw.

American officers said it was hardly likely that the Yaquis would make an attack, but ranchers and truck drivers from the Big Bend district brought in some alarmist reports.

One of these was to the effect that part of the many expeditionary force, after reaching a point only twenty-five miles from the border, had been summoned to return southward to the place where Colonel Sibley has established a sub-base.

Mexican officers in Juarez decried the theory that the sudden appearance of the Yaquis indicated any plan to attack the Americans.

"The presence of Carranza soldiers in that neighborhood," said General Gavira, commander of the district, "is merely an indication that the cooperation promised General Scott by General Obregon is in effect. Carranistas there are merely ready to take up the Americans' work. Something was done when General Pershing's men began to fall back.

"Our men moved into the camps that General Pershing's men left and are now policing the country."

Latest reports from General Pershing's expedition indicate that the first punitive force has fallen back fifteen miles north of Namiquipa. Clashes between American troops and Mexican bandits farther to the south make it apparent that Pershing is protecting the rear of his expedition with mounting parties.

A dispatch received here today by courier from Chihuahua City, Mexico, states that General Juan Manuel Jimenez Castro and Colonel Alfredo Chaves, Pedro Rodriquez, Jose Lozano, Pedro Mestas, with others of lesser rank, have renounced allegiance to the de facto government in Mexico. The officers and troops were formerly under the command of General Jacinto B. Trevino.

The new rebel leaders are said to be in full control of the San Juan del Rio, Nazas and Laguna districts, including the suburbs of Torreon, formerly the headquarters of Trevino. They have issued a proclamation in which it is promised to live back to 1 of 1857 and that all property confiscated by Carranza.

The plan of government proposed by the revolutionary leaders is, with slight modifications, the same as that adopted by the Aguas Calientes convention.

General Castro, the leader of the new movement, was formerly a famous federal general. Several years ago he commanded the only successful expedition ever sent against the Zapatistas.

U. S. Soldiers Bathing in River Fired On.

Marathon, Tex., May 22.—Mexican snipers fired on a party of American soldiers bathing in the river near Brenner's Ford last Friday, according to persons arriving here today from the river country. None of the soldiers, who were of the Fourteenth Cavalry, were injured. When they got to their guns on the river bank the snipers had disappeared.

Captain H. L. Evans, signal corps section commander, arrived here today from the south, bringing news that half of Colonel Sibley's forces turned back late Saturday, to face a force of 400 Yaqui Indians which apparently was trailing Major Langhorne's division. The detachment which turned back was en route to the border and had reached a point within fourteen miles of the Rio Grande when a mounted messenger, riding from El Pino, 70 miles to the south, caught up with them and told them of the danger which threatened Langhorne's men.

ORPET IS INNOCENT, 'OTHER GIRL' IN CASE TELLS DOROTHY DIX

No one has talked with her. Not one word concerning the affair has come directly or indirectly from her and this reticence has piqued public curiosity.

"Who is this Celestia Youker?" everyone has been asking. "Was she really engaged to Will Orpet? Did she love him and does she love him still in spite of all that has happened?" Did she know of his affair with Marian Lambert? What will she testify to when she goes upon the stand? Will she help his cause or will she send him to the gallows?

Happily I can answer now these questions, as for the first time since the tragedy occurred, Celestia Youker has broken the vow of silence that she laid upon herself, and in her pretty little home in Riverforest, she told me the story of her friendship with Will Orpet.

MISS YOUKER IS ONE OF THOSE WONDER GIRLS.

But to unravel the skeins. To begin with Celestia Youker belongs to a fine and scholarly family, none better in Illinois. Her grandfather was one of the pioneer clergymen in this State for almost half a century, and one of the shining lights in the Rock River Methodist Conference. Her father, the Rev. J. Elston Youker, was a brilliant man, who was educated abroad.

He followed his father's footsteps in the ministry and developed great literary power, an orator, but he never his gifts to building up wealthy churches, churches so poor that office he preached for nothing and supported himself and his family by doing court reporting.

Miss Youker herself is an extraordinarily pretty and talented young woman. She is just a little slip of a girl of twenty-two, with no oval face framed in masses of dark brown hair, with a regular and sunny little nose and mouth and a complexion that is as white by nature's design as beauty rose.

To crown her beauty her face is simply alight with intelligence and character, for Celestia Youker is one of those wonder girls, who look like flowers, but has the strength and stability of steel.

Her father was so much a man of God and so intent on his Master's business that he had no time to accumulate much of this world's goods for himself, and so, when he died, he left his family with little money.

Celestia, although scarcely more than a child, took upon her slender shoulders the burden of her own career and made her own way through the DeKalb Normal School with such success that when she graduated she was given immediately the position of assistant teacher of chemistry, the position she still holds.

DENIES REPORT OF ENGAGEMENT TO ORPET.

I first talked about this affair before," said Miss Youker to me, her gray blue eyes looking rather drearily out of the window, "because I had no notoriety, and I shrink from the baleful publicity that has been forced upon me by the case.

"But when such false statements are made about me, as were made in a paper, in which I was described as going to the jail to see Will Orpet, and kissing him through the bars, and assuring him that I would marry him as soon as he was cleared, why I feel that the time has come when I must speak and defend myself.

"All of the statements about my visiting Will Orpet in jail or elsewhere are falsehoods. I have not seen him since Marian Lambert's death.

"And I want to say I was never engaged to Will Orpet and our engagement was never announced at my Christmas party or any other sort of a party, as the papers have reported.

"Will and I were good friends but he was in no position to become engaged to any girl. He was not financially able and had many years of work before him before he could think of marrying and I had my own career to work out.

HIS INTELLIGENCE FIRST ATTRACTED ME.

"I never know anything of Marian Lambert. I never heard her name until I heard of her being found in the Lake Geneva Woods. Will never spoke to me about her in any way, and whether she knew of me or not, I have no means of knowing. She was four years younger than I, and I think must have entered the Deerfield High school after I left.

"How did I become acquainted with Will Orpet? Very naturally and simply. My father had a church at Bluffs, where he lived there, and the Orpets lived near there, too.

"Will and I went through the Deerfield High school together and were graduated in the same classes. I was attracted to him by his intelligence—he was exceptionally bright, one of the honor pupils of his class and considered by the other boys the most brilliant boy in the class.

"There are not a great many young people about Lake Bluff and we were thrown together and he used to come to see me and I used to go out with him a great deal. But he was not the only boy who came to see me or with whom I went about.

"He never paid much attention to girls when we were at school and wasn't in any way the sort of boy who is called 'a lady's man.' So you can imagine how incredible it is for me to hear all this story of his affair with the Lambert girl. It is so outrageously out of keeping with all of my knowledge of him. I just can't believe it."

And then Celestia Youker straightened her slim little shoulders and looked me squarely in the eye and her voice rang clear and true as a bell.

"Whatever else Will may have done," she said, "I know he did not kill Marian Lambert. I would stake my life on that. He could not have done a mean and cruel thing like that.

TO GIVE HEARING ON PARDON FOR HARMON

The Pardon Committee of the Executive Council will give a hearing on Wednesday on an application for a pardon for James R. Harmon, formerly of Somerville, and a son of a lieutenant of police of that city, who was committed to State prison for life in December, 1909, for murder.

Harmon, who was then but eighteen years of age, shot and killed Maude H. Hartley of Somerville, as she was about to board an electric car on Highland street, about 8 o'clock in the morning of December 18, 1908.

The Parole Board, following an investigation of the case, reported against a pardon in December, 1913, and again in December of last year.

In a memorandum, however, filed with its report of last December, the board went on record as favoring a commutation of sentence, when Harmon shall have served ten years, provided his behavior as a prisoner warrants the permit of his release at that time on parole.

At the final hearing before the Parole Board the mother of the murdered girl opposed executive clemency, but at present she favors his release.

ATTACK ORPET ALIBI

By International News Service.

Wauconda, Ill., May 22.—The trial of Will Orpet, charged with the murder of Marian Lambert, began its second week in the Lake County Court here today with both sides anxious to complete a jury and get down to the actual presentation of evidence. One of the strong cards to be played by the State will be its attack on the alibi offered by Orpet after his arrest.

If no more progress is made this week than was made last a jury will not be completed until the end of next week. The State is anxious to avoid

But four jurors, sworn and accepted, were in the box when court opened this morning. Several more have been tentatively accepted, but are subject-ed to recall.

TWO SUNDAY VISITORS

Orpet spent a quiet Sunday in his cell in the county jail. Neither his father nor mother visited him. The only persons admitted to his quarters were a young man and woman whose identities neither they nor the authorities would reveal. Hundreds of persons in motor cars rode slowly past the jail during the day. Necks were craned in hopes of getting a glimpse of the now notorious student.

As the trial proceeds, the impression grows that Josephine Davis, Marian Lambert's closest friend and the only person to whom she confessed her relations with Orpet, is going to prove the biggest stumbling block in the young student's fight for freedom. Attorneys for the State declare she will testify that while Marian confessed to her, she never mentioned suicide. The defence is depending on the suicide theory to clear Orpet.

FRAMED ALIBI A LINK.

Miss Davis will testify, they say, that Miss Lambert gave her confidence for Orpet, and thus would not have killed herself in the agony of losing a love of which she already was tiring.

Even "Blue Monday" failed to keep the crowds away from the court room today. It was packed to suffocation and dozens of autos and rigs were standing in the streets about the court yard.

The framed alibi of Will Orpet will be one of the strongest links in the chain of circumstantial evidence by which the prosecuting attorneys expect to have the youth convicted of murder.

Prosecutor Attorney Dady has in his possession the letter Orpet had a friend mail to Miss Lambert from Madison, Wisconsin, at the time he was supposed to be fatally ill with her in Heins Woods. This note, which contained only news of passing interest, as from a boy to a girl friend, will be produced at the trial to show that the whole affair was not arranged to keep the knowledge of his visit to Lake Forest from the press, but it will be contended was planned to deceive the girls' parents and the authorities.

WANTS LETTER EXPLAINED.

Orpet will have to explain to the satisfaction of the farmer jury why he had a letter mailed to Miss Lambert at the time he was with her. And that will probably be the most difficult part of the incrimination circumstances "to reasonably account for."

"Orpet wrote a letter to his father and one to Miss Lambert on Monday night, February 7," Mr. Dady said today. "He put the date of day, the month, on each of them and sent his college chum, Otto Peterson, to mail them Wednesday morning."

"If, as he says, his only purpose in keeping the appointment with the girl was to tell her he was through with her, why did he take such great care in having that letter mailed at the time he was with her?"

It also will be shown that he rumpled the bed covering in his room in Madison to make it appear he had slept there Tuesday night, February 8, the night he later admitted he spent in Lake Forest.

All this will be explained by the defence as a "youthful plot" of the elder Orpet think his son had not left his studies during the period between terms. But the prosecution will present a mass of other evidence and the testimony of nearly 100 witnesses to show that the alibi was a part of the premeditated murder of the Lake Forest girl by the university student.

KINMAN'S WIFE IN ASYLUM

A pathetic story of a wife's devotion and self-sacrifice was revealed today when it became known for the first time that Mrs. Mary Inman, wife of George Sanford Inman, fugitive cashier of the United Trust Company, has been committed to a State insane asylum near Boston as the result of her husband's flight last July following disclosures that his accounts were short $122,000.

Mrs. Inman, woman like, had been brave during the excitement that followed her husband's disappearance. She surrendered everything she owned, even to her jewels and bank accounts, in the effort to make restitution for her husband. It left her penniless.

Mrs. Inman gave up her finely furnished suite at No. 1197 Beacon street and turned over to the authorities her private estate, worth $14,314.67. She gave up a bracelet that had cost her $2,500 and a seven karat diamond ring and other trinkets. She surrendered stocks and bonds and gilt-edged securities and her automobile.

And when the National Surety Company had been paid its $10,000 bond and part settlement had been made to the fruit company Mrs. Inman, who was Marion Armstrong, a member of the "Pink Lady" Company, collapsed. She is twenty-nine. Her husband is fifty and is thought now to be hiding in New York. They had been married but a year. Inman's first wife was Clara Armstrong, a pretty Maine waitress, who divorced him in 1911.

Four Men Fined For Witnessing a Sunday Cockfight

Haverhill, May 22.—Cockfighting on the Sabbath is a serious offense and its patrons should have a heavy punishment meted out to them, according to Judge John J. Wing of the District Court, who today fined four men $25 each for being present at a cockfight in Bradford.

The four victims were Robert H. Ross, Lynn; Frank Smith, Lynn; Frank Boldue, Peabody, and Peter O'Neil, Haverhill. More warrants were issued today, and it is understood that a number of prominent Haverhill men are being sought in connection with the fight.

The men in court today were arrested by State Officer William F. Murray and Charles Clark of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Fitzgerald Comes Back With 'Adeline' and 'Ben Bolt,' Too

John F. Fitzgerald, ex-Mayor of Boston, talked and sang before St. Peter's Holy Name Society in Ronan Memorial Hall, Dorchester, last night. The hall was crowded to its capacity, and Dr. Fitzgerald was enthusiastically applauded.

The speaker, who was introduced by Monsignor Peter Ronan, pastor of the parish, took "Opportunity" for his topic, and lauded Monsignor Ronan as a man who had made the most of his opportunities. Dr. Fitzgerald talked on the lines on which he hammered when Mayor, regarding the outside investment of Boston capital and the failure of Bostonians to take advantage of opportunities at home.

When he had concluded his address, he sang, by request, "Sweet Adeline" and "Ben Bolt."

GIRL GONE; MAN IS HELD

Myron Clark, mixer for a Roxbury baking company, who is married and has two children, according to the Weymouth police, is under arrest charged with inducing Miss Hazel Aylesworth, twenty, of East Weymouth to leave home. Clark is being held in $500.

Miss Aylesworth, who is a choir singer, disappeared a week ago, after telling her mother, Mrs. Herman, that she was going to attend an Epworth League meeting.

When she failed to get home her parents made inquiries and learned that she had not attended the meeting.

From a letter received from her and a telegram from a relative in Illinois, coupled with the alleged statement of Clark to the police that also was in Illinois, which proved untrue, they believe she is detained against her will somewhere in Boston.

Her mother received a letter saying that Mrs. Clark's folks had learned that she and Clark met and were making it very disagreeable for her and so she had decided to "drop out of sight for a while." The letter was postmarked Quincy.

As the days passed they became worried and again urged the police to renew his hunt for her. They were aware for some months previous to her disappearance of Clark's attentions to Hazel. Then it was reported to her parents that Clark was a married man and she is said to have assured them she would not meet him again.

The family was greatly alarmed when Mrs. Herman received a telegram from her sister, Mrs. J. B. Kelley of Paris, Ill., saying: "Is Hazel at home?"

In reply Mrs. Herman wired: "No, what can you tell me?"

The answer from Mrs. Kelley was this: "Clark is at the bottom of this. He is to leave Saturday for Chicago. Find him and compel him to disclose Hazel's whereabouts."

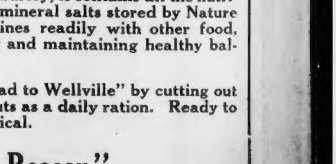
Mrs. Herman swore out a warrant for Clark's arrest. The police at first intended to hold him without bail, but upon his agreement to tell where Miss Aylsworth was, he was allowed to be bailed in $500.

He said that she had gone to Paris, Ill. This information was wired to Mrs. Kelley, who replied: "Hold Clark until after you receive the letter from me." The contents of the letter are unknown.

SOUTH BOSTON MAN ACCUSED OF DEATH

Joseph Gustatus was in South Boston court today charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Joseph Diford two weeks ago Wednesday, when, it is alleged, the men got into an argument in a saloon in Dorchester and later fighting on the street. Diford was picked up and charged with drunkenness. He was fined $5 the following day. His brother and a brother's home later on that day and he complained of being ill. He died in the hospital. Medical Examiner Harney testified death was due to a fractured skull. Gustatus was held in $5,000 bail until Saturday.

I'll Do It—



The ability—to do things worth while is almost always limited to the fortunate combination of a well-balanced mind and body.

Food—right food, and right living play an indispensable part in the program.

Unfortunately the usual dietary consists of too many heavy, indigestible foods, often lacking the mineral elements, phosphate of potash, etc., which are absolutely essential for physical well-being.

Grape-Nuts

is a food especially designed to correct these faults of the modern dietary. Made of whole wheat and barley, it contains all the nutriment of these grains, including the mineral salts stored by Nature in these cereals. Grape-Nuts combines readily with other food, and is a wonderful help in restoring and maintaining healthy balance of body, brain and nerves.

Thousands have found the "Road to Wellville" by cutting out improper foods and using Grape-Nuts as a daily ration. Ready to eat, nourishing, appetizing, economical.

Others are Joseph M. Herman, vice-president Federated Jewish Charities of Boston; Ferdinand Straus, Simon Borenberg, Augustus L. Thorndike, bank commissioner; W. D. T. Trefry, commissioner of corporations; Charles L. Burrill, state treasurer; Charles S. Sweetser, assistant United States Treasurer at Boston; Louis K. The Massachusetts Credit Union, of which Felix Vorenberg is president, Samuel L. Heeht, E. A. Filene and Judge A. K. Cohen, vice-presidents, was the first organization to promote the credit movement in this country.

It has established a general clearing house for credit union information for the general public. The union has furnished headquarters for those already laboring in the movement. It has established nearly a score of credit unions in this State and has secured the affiliation of more than one-half the unions in Massachusetts. It has reduced by 50 per cent. the cost of outfitting a credit union.

The work of the union to date is an important Jewish contribution to non-sectarian, constructive philanthropy.

The members of the advisory board of the campaign are Felix Vorenberg, chairman; Nathan Sallinger, Judge A. K. Cohen, Max Mitchell and Maxwell Copelof. The initial subscription committee consists of Nathan Sallinger, chairman; Leon Strauss, Max Mitchell and Felix Vorenberg.

Among the well-known men interested in the campaign are: Nathan Sallinger, general campaign manager; Felix Vorenberg, president of the Massachusetts Credit Union; Samuel D. Waxman, campaign treasurer; Max Mitchell, Joseph P. Morse, auditor; George Moses, Leon Strauss, chairman, banquet committee; Charles Weil, Israel Nesson, Fred Vorenberg, chief of captains; William Hirsch, Sidney V. Rintels, Max Shoolman, Philip Davis, Edward A. Dreyfus, Arthur Wallace, Adolph Giesberg, H. Ehrman, Judge A. K. Cohen, Maxwell Copelof, Simon Vorenberg, Louis E. Kirstein, Rabbi Harry Levi, Rabbi M. M. Kiebler, Rabbi H. H. Rubenovitz, Rabbi P. Israeli and William J. Stanton.

Mr. Sallinger issued the following statement today to those who have not received tickets to attend the opening banquet:

"Many people have called the committee's attention to the fact that they had not received invitations to the dinner. This leads us to believe that, owing to the enormous amount of detail, many people may have been overlooked who were on the original mailing list for invitations. This being the case, any friends of the movement who have not received an invitation can procure a reservation by calling today at the Massachusetts Credit Union headquarters, 78 Devonshire street, Boston."

EXPEDITION TO CROCKER LAND SUCCEEDS

The success of the Crocker Land Expedition into the Far North, which left Boston, July 3, 1913, headed by Donald B. MacMillan, was reported today by Professor Maurice C. Tanquary of Chicago, zoologist of the expedition, who arrived today in Copenhagen from Greenland, on the steamer Hans Egede.

Professor Tanquary said the expedition had been extremely successful, though the other members had been unable to get back to civilization now as the relief ship Chiltt had been prevented by the ice from reaching the base at North Star Bay. He said he expected them all to return this Summer.

The expedition sailed from Boston on the sealing steamer Diana, which was badly damaged three days later in Belle Isle Strait, when the expedition was transferred to the Erik.

The expedition was organized under the auspices of the American Geographical Society and the New York Museum of Natural History. Fredericks Patterson of Dayton, O., son of John H. Patterson of the National Cash Register Company, and Judge Carroll Parrott, also of Dayton, accompanied the expedition.

SHADOW OF T. R. ON REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

ly worried over the Roosevelt movement.

There is hardly a question in the mind of any on the Hughes floor here that if the convention were to be held this week the nomination would be handed on the second or third ballot. The managers of the favorite sons' boom are making strenuous efforts to solidify all their votes so they can name as presidential candidate one of the men on this list. But the difficulty that is being encountered in this movement is that practically none of the candidates can deliver his delegates to any one. And it is conceded that if Justice Hughes should show formidably on the initial ballot, and this seemed certain today, many of the instructed delegates will feel that they have obeyed the letter of their commission by voting for their State candidate on the first ballot.

All the delegates remaining to be elected will be chosen this week, with the exception of West Virginia, where the primaries will be held June 6, South Dakota elects tomorrow, as does Texas, while Vermont, whose primaries were carried by Hughes, votes on Friday.

The majority of the campaign managers of candidates now either are in Chicago or are en route there. They plan to meet the delegates as they arrive and try to strengthen their positions.

Meanwhile Republican leaders are discussing platform planks. The Republican convention was called about as the Democratic to order to plan a Wilson administration, if possible, on the defensive from the start.

With this object in view it is planned that the tariff planks shall insist that only a protective tariff will save the country from grave financial disaster when the European war ends. The Wilson Mexican policy will be denounced in unqualified terms, and it is likely that as a sop to the Progressive party certain of the so-called humanitarian planks favored by the leaders in that party will be incorporated in the Chicago platform.

SANITOL WEEK JUNE 25TH

626 Delegates to the Convention Are Uninstructed

THE number of delegates to the Republican convention is 985, and of these 626 already elected are uninstructed. The instructed delegates so far elected are divided 74 for Cummins, 34 for Sherman, 48 for Burton, 40 for Fairbanks, 39 for Ford, 25 for La Follette, 20 for Brumbaugh, 10 for Hughes, and 6 for Roosevelt. Brumbaugh's 20 of the 76 delegates from the Keystone State are all understood to be Roosevelt men, and they are expected to go to the Colonel after they have cast a complimentary vote for Brumbaugh on the first ballot at Chicago.

TWO GIRLS FOUND GUILTY OF ASSAULT

Evelyn McDonald, nineteen, of Hazard street, Chelsea, and Theresa Segers, eighteen, of Silver street, East Boston, were found guilty in the Odeon Court today of mutual assault and battery.

Miss McDonald was given a suspended sentence of three months in the House of Corrections and the other girl's case was placed on file.

According to the police, the two fought in an amusement resort at Revere Beach, one alleging the other insulted her. A large crowd urged on the combatants, who were busily engaged in pulling each other's hair, when Officer John J. Walsh appeared and placed them under arrest.

CLUB WOMEN OF U. S. GATHER FOR 13TH BIENNIAL

By International News Service.

New York, May 22.—Women from all parts of the United States are arriving in New York today to attend the thirteenth biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. It is estimated that 20,000 women will attend the convention. Until the gathering ends, on June 1, the women will occupy virtually all of the Astor Hotel, which is convention headquarters, while many individual delegations will have quarters in the other large hotels.

Today's program consisted mainly of registration, board luncheon and the dinner of heads of all committees. Registration will be continued tomorrow with another meeting of committee heads.

The convention will get down to serious business on Wednesday. On that day there will be a council meeting, and State presidents, State secretaries and the music committee will confer at luncheons.

To insure the convenience and comfort of the delegates, the federation obtained for the convention 400,000 hairpins, 200 pairs of scissors, 5,000 pins, 100 bottles of smelling salts, 10,000 pencils, 20,000 writing pads and large quantities of lace powder, pins, needles, thimbles and thread.

A lost and found bureau will be maintained, and a skilled optician will be in attendance to repair or replace broken eyeglasses.

An End To The Curse Of Wearing Worthless Trusses

No More Rupture Troubles 60 Days' Trial To Prove It

You Don't Have to Risk A Penny

Here is something absolutely guaranteed to keep your rupture from coming out.

And you can try it sixty days—make a thorough, never-it-to-stop test—without having to risk a penny.

Don't doubt—don't hold—if doesn't keep your rupture from bothering you in any way—then don't cost you a single cent.

The Only Thing Good Enough To Stand Such A Test

You know as well as we that you can't tell anything about a truss or anything else for rupture merely by trying it on. That's the worst of going to a druggists or your doctor's store.

A truss or so-called "appliance" may seem all right when you first put it on, and afterwards prove utterly worthless.

The only way in the world you can make sure—positive—that you're getting is by a 60 days' trial—a thorough day-after-day test.

And our guaranteed rupture holder—the famous Cluthe Automatic Massaging Truss—is the only thing of any kind whatever for rupture that can get on sixty days' trial, the only thing good enough to stand such a long and thorough test.

Something Nothing Else Does

The Cluthe Automatic Massaging Truss is an utterly different from anything else for rupture that it has received eighteen separate patents.

It provides the only way ever discovered for overcoming the weakness which is the real cause of rupture.

Just how it does these—entirely automatically—is all explained in the free book.

Will Save You From Operation

The Cluthe Truss has so thoroughly proved its merits that physicians in all parts of the world and surgeons in the U. S. Army and Navy now recommend it instead of advising operation. It has brought complete recovery in hundreds of cases after operation has proved a failure.

No Belt or Leg Straps to Annoy You

That's why people who try it never say it is comfortable as their clothing. It is water-proof—will hold in the bath. Can be kept clean.

Get World's Greatest Rupture Book

Don't send any money—just write for our free book and find out everything you want to know.

Full of facts never before put in print. Well-bound—96 pages—28 scientific articles and 22 photographic illustrations. Will save you from being fooled and you from wasting money.

Explains why elastic and spring trusses are a wicked crime—why they are the ruptured man's worst enemy—why the use should stop their sale.

Exposes the humbug "appliances," "methods," "plasters," etc.

Shows why operating is often a needless gamble with death, and why if a man manages to get well from the operation he often has to keep on wearing a truss.

And it tells all about the Cluthe Automatic Massaging Truss and how you can try it sixty days and how little it costs if you keep it.

Gives endorsements of over 4,000 people.

Better write for the book today—it tells things you could never find out by going to doctors or druggists. Sign a post, the coupon or say in a letter or postal "Send me the book."

MAJ. HIGGINSON TO MARCH FOR DEFENSE

Major Henry L. Higginson, head of one of the largest banking houses in Boston and eighty-one years of age and chairman of the general committee of the citizens' preparedness parade, announced tody tht he would march "with any other of the old fellows as an example to the young fellows of what we old chaps can do."

Major Higginson today issued a proclamation which read in part:

"On the 27th of May many citizens of Boston who are ready to stand up for our country will parade the streets of Boston and thus declare their intention. They have been struck by the lack of readiness of several European nations in the existing war and take it as a warning to make ready for the care and defence of our country, and they regard preparedness as a vital issue today."

The first official statement outlining the plans of the women's divisions was made public today by Mrs. George R. Fearing, Jr., who is to act as chief marshal of the women. Mrs. Fearing said Miss Nora Saltonstall, daughter of Mrs. Richard M. Saltonstall, would be chief aid, and that the other aids would be graduates of Chevy Chase, the preparedness camp for women near Washington. Mrs. Fearing said:

TO TURN OUT 1,000 WOMEN.

"The Special Aid Society for American Preparedness and the surgical dressings department will turn out 1,000 women. We shall also have a division of unattached women who are being rapidly enrolled and nurses and other women's organizations are to march. In our society a platoon of women in white will carry a long banner designating our organization, and the rest of the 1,000 women have been asked to wear small black hats, black suits and black shoes and carry small American flags."

BRIGHTON IN LINE.

Only two days remain for organizations to file their enrollment blanks, as the listing of organizations is to close at 5 p. m. on Wednesday. Wednesday night Colonel Beaumont B. Buck will make up the roster for the parade.

The headquarters at No. 42 Broad street were open at 9 o'clock today. Colonel Buck, who is to be Chief Marshal of the parade, began to make up the divisions on paper, and will announce the list of his aides shortly.

The latest organization to announce its intention of marching is the Allston-Brighton Citizens Preparedness Association which was formed Sunday at a mass meeting at the North Brighton playground. Ex-Representative Allen Clark was made chairman, and a committee was appointed to perfect plans for the parade.

John B. Angus, No. 14 Colman place, was named as treasurer, and it was agreed that all contributions might be sent to his address. The committee are ex-Representative Allen Clark, chairman; John J. Bowen, John McParland, Joseph J. Doherty, ex-Representative Thomas F. J. Callahan, William Kenney, Edward Mulvaney, Joseph Kennedy, Hugh Norton, John Kelley, ex-Representative William J. Donahoe and Parker H. Hayes.

The organization agreed to engage a band and each member will carry an American flag, and wear straw hats.

Amid great enthusiasm the meeting adjourned until Thursday evening, at 8 p. m. to be held at North Brighton Playground at which time and place it is expected that at least 1,000 people will be present. All Brighton and Allston citizens are invited to attend.

ENGINEERS TO MARCH.

The engineers are organizing a division for the parade, with Charles T. Main as division marshal, under the auspices of the Engineers' Club of Boston and the Boston Society of Civil Engineers. This division is to include all the engineers in the State who wish to participate. Members of the national engineering societies are particularly active in the preparedness movement, and it is expected that about 200 members of the profession will march in the great "get ready" event, including men from the mechanical, electrical and civil engineering branches. The firms of Stone & Webster, Charles T. Main, Westinghouse Electrical & Manufacturing Company, Lockwood-Greene & Co., and various other operating and consulting companies will be represented.

The entry of this division into the demonstration is particularly interesting in view of the impending organization of the Engineers' Reserve Corps as part of the measure for national preparedness.

All engineers who desire to take part in the parade should communicate with the Engineers' Club of Boston.

Patrick O'Hearn, Building Commissioner, has informed Chief Marshal Buck that the Building Department will parade its full quota, seventy-seven men and women, on Saturday. The inspectors of concrete and piling, forty-seven in number, the Board of Appeal, six members, and the Board of Examiners, four members, will parade with the Building Department.

ELKS TO PARADE.

Boston Lodge of Elks voted yesterday to take part in the parade, and a representative of the lodge will see Colonel Buck today to make arrangements. At least 500 Elks will march.

Sellers, Phillips & Co., of 111 Devonshire street, will be in line, headed probably by Mr. Sellers and Mr. McMullin of the firm.

The Roxbury Board of Trade will turn out with from 300 to 500 men in line, the managing committee was notified yesterday. Frank F. Tripp will be the marshal of the organization.

The Roslindale Athletic Association of Roslindale will put 400 men in the parade. The baseball team will appear in uniform. The committee in charge is O. C. Blaney, Harry Scampcharge is O. C. Blaney, Harry Scamp will be parade marshal.

The managing committee urges organizations that have engaged bands to report the name of the band or drum corps to Benjamin F. Teel, No. 15 Court square, Main 1421, who is in charge of music for the parade, and organizations that have not engaged music to communicate with Mr. Teel before doing so.

Cork Tips

Here We Show You How STRAIGHTS Are Cork Tipped

WHEN YOU light up a cork tipped EGYPTIENNE STRAIGHTS CIGARETTE have you ever stopped to think of the amount of detail and labor the tipping process involves?

THE VERY best quality of cork is especially imported in sheets from sunny Spain. One of the pictures above shows the machines which cut the cork the proper width and thickness. First it is made into the large spools seen on the shelf in the background. Then it is slit into spools the width required for cork tips. The work is so painstakingly done that it takes two hundred and fifty sheets to equal one inch thickness.

THE OTHER picture shows the tipping machines in operation. The spools of cork can be seen suspended over each machine. This work can be done automatically in a manner far superior to hand work, and at a speed of over a hundred per minute.

THIS IS another of the interesting steps in making STRAIGHTS which you will see should you visit the STRAIGHTS factory when in New York City. ALL are most welcome. A postal to 337-347 West 27th Street, New York City, will bring the card of invitation promptly.

AND DON'T overlook the clear, airy setting in which the work is done—"evidence of refinement," M'Cann of the N. Y. Globe, America's foremost crusader for cleanliness in factories, calls it.

WE WANT you to know everything there is to know about STRAIGHTS. You have friends who you know well and believe implicitly in. That's how we want you to feel about STRAIGHTS. It's a smoke, Men, that's surpassingly good and pure!

WANTS HELP BUT BARS GERMANS AND IRISH

Beverly, May 22.—German and Irish gardeners are barred from employment on the large Hamilton estate of Maxwell Norman, according to an advertisement inserted in one of the local papers by him today.

The advertisement, asking for a gardener "able to manage a few men to advantage," has stirred up considerable feeling. It reads:

"Wanted — Gardener, experienced tree planter and flower grower, able to manage a few men to advantage. Favorable references from former employer for two or more years required. State in first letter, age, nationality, single or married, with small or no family and what wages expected. No Germans or Irish need apply. Address MAXWELL NORMAN, Hamilton."

Mr. Norman, who also has a place at Newport, is one of the most exclusive residents of the North Shore. He is a member of the Myopia Hunt Club, an enthusiastic polo player, and a leader in society activities.

MRS. CARPENTER ADMITS SHE SMOKED

juice to the hair that it would keep it a dark light and that the sun would not affect it. I put in on for that reason, as I was out doors all the time.

Q—Did you tell Mrs. Carpenter about it? A—Yes, Ralph's mother laughed at it. She did not object.

Q—Did it keep your hair in good condition? No, it did not do the work I expected it to do.

Q—Now your husband has said that you used to whitewash your arms and neck, did you? A—I do.

Q—What with? A—A liquid powder. It comes in a bottle. Just as Ralph explained on the stand, you shake it up, put it on a sponge then apply it to your back, neck and shoulders. When you dance it does not come off on the gentlemen's coat like powder does.

Q—Did your husband help you with these applications? A—Yes, he always put it on my back.

Q—Your husband has also stated about your manner of dress. Did you buy your clothes believing that they would show off your figure? A—No, I never had that thought in mind.

At this point Attorney Badger stopped this line of questioning and commenced questioning Mrs. Carpenter about certain habits which she has and caused her of when he was on the stand.

Q—Did you ever smoke, Mrs. Carpenter? A—Yes, a little.

Q—What did you smoke? A—Cigarettes.

Q—With whom did you smoke? A—My husband.

Q—Did he ever object? A—No, sir, never.

Q—When you attended parties where women smoked, what special thing would your husband do in regard to this smoking? A—He would always light a match for me and see that my cigarette was lighted for me.

Q—What about your drinking that he accuses you of? Did you drink? A—Yes, a little.

Q—When did you commence drinking? A—After I was married. I never drank before I was married to Ralph.

Q—What was the incident at Narragansett when your husband accused you of drinking drink? A—We attended a dinner party at the Casino. We had a cocktail and some champagne. The following morning Ralph told me I had been drunk the night before. Somebody had told him that my mind was very clear as to what took place the night before. I added that if he said I was drunk that I must have been, that's all.

Q—Do you like liquor? A—No, sir, I do not like it.

Q—Now, Mrs. about powdering your face; have you used powder as your husband stated on the witness stand? A—Yes, I used to put pink powder on my face in the evening when I dressed.

Q—Did you ever paint your face? A—No, I never put paint on it.

Q—Was your dress extreme in their style? A—No.

Q—Where did you buy them? A—At Hollander's and at Eames and different places, sometimes in New York. They were all ready made. They consisted of silks, satins, velvets and other material.

GOWNS WERE MODEST.

Attorney Badger created considerable laughter at this point when he asked if he had heard of "sequin" and there such a material.

Mrs. Carpenter laughed with the rest of the people and replied: "Oh yes, its what you call chiffon."

Q—Did your dresses show your back, neck and arms to any extreme? A—No, they were modest gowns.

Q—Did he ever criticise you about your dresses before he did here on the witness stand? A—No, he most always stated that he thought my dresses were quite attractive.

Q—Now he has accused you of intentionally crossing your limbs so that you could expose them. Is that true, did you do that? A—Never.

Q—Did you ever call him a whelp? No, never.

Q—Did you ever call him a liar? A—Yes.

Q—Was he lying? A—Yes.

Q—Ever call him crazy? Yes, sir.

Q—Did you think he was at the time? A—Yes.

Q—Ever call him a fool or foolish? A—Yes.

STOCKS AND INVESTMENTS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks ruled strong in New York at noon, there having been no reaction of consequence during the morning. The market had been active, first hour transactions totalling more than 225,000 shares and trading being on a large scale in the second. There was better buying of munition issues and a number, including Car and Foundry, Crucible, Baldwin, American Locomotive, Colorado Fuel and Wilys-Overland, making substantial gains. Railroads were the feature in the first hour and a number of specialties got the most attention in the second. Canadian Pacific lost its early gain, trading going on around 169 when last dealt in. Coppers were strong for a while, but were affected by profit taking. There was enough of the latter before the morning was over to retard the advance.

Gains at 12 o'clock included American Smelting ½, Anaconda ¼, American Sugar ¼, American Can ¾, Car and Foundry 1¼, American Locomotive 1¾, Baldwin 1½, Colorado Fuel 1¼, Crucible 1⅜, General Electric ⅝, Goodrich ½, Lackawanna Steel ¼, Studebaker 1½, Industrial Alcohol ¼, Westinghouse ½, Willys-Overland ¼, Western Union 1¼, Atchison ⅜, Lehigh Valley ½, Missouri Pacific ½, N. Y. Central ¼, New Haven ¼, Northern Pacific ⅜, Pennsylvania ¼, Southern Pacific ⅝, St. Paul 1¼, Union Pacific ⅝ and Reading 1⅜. Railroads as a class had suffered from profit taking. During the noon hour Reading sold at 163¼, up 2¼.

Among declines at 12 o'clock were Beet Sugar ⅝, Canadian Pacific ⅝, Erie ½, Chesapeake & Ohio ½, Interborough ½, Distillers ½, Great Northern Ore ½, Mexican Petroleum ⅝ and Republic Steel ⅛.

Among unchanged issues were Baltimore & Ohio, Rock Island, Kansas and Utah.

In Boston, United Shoe had recovered its early loss. By noon, the local list was on a higher level. Gains included Alaska Gold ⅛, American Zinc ⅜, Butte & Superior 2, Calumet & Arizona ⅝, Copper Range ⅛, Isle Royale ½, Mohawk 1⅜, North Butte ⅝, Quincy ¼, St. Mary ½, United States Smelting ¼ and New Haven ¼.

Among declines were Old Dominion ¼, Superior ½ and Ahmeek 1. United Shoe was unchanged as were United Fruit, Atlantic Gulf preferred, Boston Elevated and Boston & Maine.

Prices were higher in New York at the opening, taking the list as a whole. Buying orders accumulated over Sunday. When the market began there was demand for many specialties besides railroads. Anaconda was the strong copper in which there was much early trading. Gains were almost fractional, although Studebaker and Canadian Pacific advanced a point or more. More demand for stocks in connection with preparedness was reported. According to statements from that quarter the public is showing more interest in the market. Many observers believe that as soon as outsiders are wholly reassured as to the international situation they will take a hand in speculation. Much of the buying recently, as is shown by the extent of odd-lot business, has been by small investors. Advices from standard shares last week went far toward convincing people that the stock market is approaching the normal.

The Boston market was firm at the opening but was narrow and dull. United Shoe and Winona were the only issues. Aside from them there was no feature. The former opened at Saturday's closing price, but soon weakened.

It is stated by a United Shoe Machinery official that the business of that corporation is of record proportions and he is quoted as saying: "There will be an extra dividend declared on the common stock at the June meeting of directors. The amount of this extra has not been determined."

In the London metal market spot copper was off £1, futures were off £½ and electrolytic was unchanged. Spot tin and futures were £1 5s. lower, with Straits off £1. Spot lead was up 5s. 6d., futures were unchanged. Spot spelter was unchanged and futures were off £2.

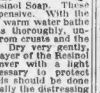
How to Heal Skin-Diseases

A Baltimore doctor suggests this simple, but reliable and inexpensive, home treatment for people suffering with eczema, ringworm, rashes and itching, blotchy, burning skin troubles.



At any reliable druggist's get a jar of Resinol Ointment and a cake of Resinol Soap. These are not at all expensive. With the Resinol Soap and warm water bathe the affected parts thoroughly, until they are free from crusts and the skin is softened. Dry very gently, spread on a thin layer of the Resinol Ointment, and cover with a light bandage—if necessary to protect the clothing. This should be done twice a day. Usually the distressing itching and burning stop with the first treatment, and the skin soon becomes clear and healthy again. Sample free, Dept. 30-R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.—Advertisement.

Step-Children of W. B. Endicott Ask to Bear His Name

Miss Katherine Colburn of Dedham, prominent horsewoman and step-daughter of William B. Endicott, millionaire shoe manufacturer, and her brother, Samuel Pratt Colburn, today petitioned that their name be changed to Endicott.

Their petitions were filed in the Norfolk Probate Court, and are returnable June 7 at Dedham.

The reason for the change given is the desire of their step-father, who is senior member of the shoe manufacturing firm of Endicott & Johnson of New York, for them to bear his name.

Brother and sister make their home with their mother and step-father on the beautiful Endicott estate at Dedham. In the petition Samuel Colburn gave his occupation as that of a composer of music. He is thirty-seven years old and his sister thirty-four years.

In the June bride's spread of beautiful gifts, there will be "no regrets" for those who give Paine Furniture. And the quality of one's gift is not altogether a matter of expense, but rather a fine discrimination in the selection.

Paine's many individual shops present an incomparable variety of worth-while furniture at moderate prices.

Antiques, and Reproductions of Antique Furniture so perfectly done in our factories on the premises that to all appearances they have passed through the mellowing process of age.

The sketch shows a massive Jacobean library table in oak, richly carved; early English arm chair in tapestry; carved oak bench and lamp.

Smaller pieces, such as tea wagons, tea tables, chairs, desks and bookcases, that are effective, yet inexpensive.

Bulletin No. 1

A Mistake in the Policy of the Bethlehem Steel Company

To the People:

The Senate of the United States has passed a bill to spend $11,000,000 of the People's money to build a government armor plant. The measure is now before the House of Representatives.

It is said that manufacturers of armor have "gouged" the country in the past, and that a government plant is necessary to secure armor more cheaply.

The mistake of the Bethlehem Steel Company has been that it has kept quiet.

We have allowed irresponsible assertions to be made for so long without denial, that many people now believe them to be proven facts.

We shall make the mistake of silence no longer.

Henceforth we shall pursue a policy of publicity. Misinformation will not be permitted to go uncorrected.

It is and has been the policy of our Company to deal with the American Government fairly and squarely.

We shall henceforth place the details of our relations with the Government before the American People.

The United States has for twenty years obtained the highest grade of armor and has paid a lower price for it than has any other great naval power.

Figures officially compiled for the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs from the Naval Year Book show that under conditions prevailing just before the European war, the chief naval powers of the world were paying these prices for armor:

England, $503 per ton; France, $160; Germany, $490; Japan, $490; UNITED STATES, $425.

A government plant cannot make armor any cheaper than we can do it; and—

We are prepared to manufacture armor at any price which the Government itself shall name as fair. THAT BEING SO, SHOULD $11,000,000 OF THE PEOPLE'S MONEY BE WASTED TO BUILD A GOVERNMENT PLANT?

Ty Cobb Makes '16 Bow at Detroit to Open Today

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

If there is an opportunity to see ball in Fenway Park throughout the week, the fans will see some games that should prove worth a long journey to witness. The Tigers and the Wasps champions have for some time been flirting around the same general percentage. It isn't reasonable to expect either team of a tendency to drop out of the league.

To the contrary, this series should speed the Boston boys on to united effort, for in this kind of Tigers they find the club which has to be beaten out to win the flag. The leading race will stay today and continue throughout the series.

Nothing pleases a Boston crowds more than to see Hughie Jennings' club beaten, and Hughie or any other ball and real favorite is the very at that, dashes between the Red Sox and the Tigers are always filled with interest, for no matter how good a club may have been already in the there has always been a revival of "pep" and good scrapping between the schedule which sends the Detroit team here at this time was most fortunately arranged.

Something like this seems to be needed to awaken a very sleepy crowd of brilliant ball players. Perhaps it will. If it doesn't, then it is going to be all the more difficult for the champions to get a start. Two or three games in a row is the best form of tonic known in baseball.

HOOPER THE BEST.

The champions have just closed a dismal week in which time they played but three games of ball and had one of these games forced into their win column through the fatal habit of some batsmen of passes. One man stood out boldly in these games and his work alone saved a three-to-two defeat. That Hooper's fielding is about the class as any man who wears a uniform and he can hit the ball as well so why hang back.

There is still none, as a certain well known physician remarks quite frequently. The champions should cheer up. They have played like a lot of sand-lotters quite enough. To base-ball world recognizes them as Champions and expects them to live up to the title.

To size up a chance such as they have today is little short of insanity. The season isn't under way. The weather has been cold most of the time. No wonder it has injured pitchers' arms and kicked the life out of others. Nothing like the old warm winds and bright sun to bring back to life everyone, so we're told. The Summer will get here but in the meantime, a game or two will help.

The Tigers are a good subject. If the champions will show their ability, by that token, would go after the games with the same spirit and determination the Detroit boys have played, there would be a big clash in the lead held by Cleveland and only once would return, sifting through to the man who just now crooks "repeat" and be done with it. Who is going to stop a team of such ability if it gets the jiggers in its line? I don't see. For the past month the fled box have played as if they thought there wasn't a chance in the world. An idea just planted may be erased. Let it grow and it will be mighty difficult to get rid of. All the Red Sox have to do is to try option to get together and play ball. They are by long odds a more powerful team than any in the league if they only thought so. The pitching staff will come along quickly now and with it the support should improve.

ANYBODYS RACE.

By the latter part of June there will have been enough games played to indicate to a small degree the character of the race. Today anyone of seven teams may figure in the first division at times the margin is so narrow, and drawing out of first position will mean nothing.

Detroit and Boston are about even and each today, we'll say up to Bill Carrigan to get back into his men, that confidence without which they have played like bushers. The Tigers always give Boston trouble and they are likely to in this series. Still, consider the Tigers the team the champions will have to beat to win the flag, so the beating may as well start right here at Fenway Park today.

Manager Jennings brings the following squad to town, the men being quartered at the Brunswick: Pitchers, Cavelesike, Dauss, Cunningham, Boland, Boehler, Erickson, Dubuc and James; catchers, Stanage and Baker; infielders, Sullivan as coach; Rush, Vitt, Young, Burns, Heilman, Kavanaugh and Fuller; outfielders, Cobb, Crawford, Veach, Harper and Dalton.

Cobb, Veach and Heilman will probably be the outfield trio in the game today, and Stanage will catch. As both Jennings and Carrigan consider an announcement of pitcher something to be kept a dark secret, why guess. One of their twirlers will work, perhaps more than one at that.

Tomorrow evening at the Rainbow Bazaar, held under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus, Mt. Benedict Council, No. 75, Somerville, a baseball night will be held. Members of the Red Sox and Detroit clubs together with league officials will attend. John W. Campbell of the Winter League will be master of ceremonies.

NATE LEWIS WANTS COIN PUT UP IN N. Y.

New York, May 22. — Nate Lewis left for Chicago Saturday night after closing two matches here. Charley White, with Young Saylor and Richie Mitchell, and practically agreeing to terms for a championship twenty-round bout with Freddie Welsh in this city.

White will meet Saylor in Cincinnati May 25, and Ritchie Mitchell in Milwaukee May 29. Lewis is agreed to accept $10,000 for White's end against Welsh, for whom Harry Pollok demands $22,500.

Lewis insists that White and Welsh be safeguarded by a deposit of at least $17,500, placed in some New York bank, before May 25.

STRIKEOUT RECORD MADE BY SEMI-PROS

Chicago, May 22.—What is believed to have been a world's record for the number of strikeouts was made here in a semi-professional game. Pitcher Sisden of Ye Old Tavern and Pitcher Ackerman of the Mortons each struck out twenty-four batsmen. The game went fifteen innings and finally was won by the Mortons, 4 to 3.

G. TYLER HAD '14 FORM

St. Louis Folk Think Giants and Braves Contenders; Tyler's Sunday Game a Corker.

St. Louis, Mo., May 22.—It was wonderful pitching from Tyler, James and Rudolph that made the 1914 Braves the pennant winners—but that wonderful pitching has been absent this Spring. However, the Braves received a sample of the pennant pitching yesterday when George Tyler won a 2 to 0 game from the Cardinals, handed out two stingy singles, gave but one base on balls and only twenty-nine batters faced him.

Against the Reds the pitching was not right in the pinch and the ex-champions dropped three in a row. However, Stallings displayed a wide smile yesterday when he walked off the field with President Haughton. "I believe that's a starter for us," said the "Miracle Man." "Just a few more games like that and we'll have our confidence back."

St. Louis fans are handing the flag over to the Giants and the Braves. The thirteen defeats in fifteen games for the Giants really was the handsap for the other National League club. Easily the best ball club that has been here this season is the Giants. McGraw has the shutters, great fence busters and it will take some mighty heaving to shut out these birds.

What McGraw lacks is pitching. However, he received an encouraging surprise Saturday when Christy Mathewson staged a legitimate comeback against the Cardinals. In that game he allowed six hits in nine innings.

Tyler's game was almost perfect. Only four St. Louis players reached first. Cruhan walked in the first, Wilson singled in the fifth, Butler singled in the eighth and Gonzales was safe when Smith muffed an easy pop fly. Two runners were erased on double plays and the other two did not advance past second base.

SWEPT ON THE BRAVES.

The visit of the Braves yesterday completed the call of all the Cardinals' rivals. The Phillies were slow and groggy when Alexander was not pitching. The Dodgers can hit, but they run the bases wild and played dumb baseball in the pinch when there. The Pirates are hopeless; the same comment goes for the Reds, but the Cubs are erratic. So that swings it down to the Giants and the Braves.

With Evers in condition again the Braves will be dangerous, and Rudolph appears to be better than "Jumbo" Schmidt on first. When the proper pitching returns the Braves should get back on their winning stride.

"Hub" Deal will probably be called upon to stop the Braves in today's game, while Tom Hughes will get the first call from Stallings.

DIES WHEN STRUCK BY A PITCHED BALL

Detroit, Mich., May 22.—George White was struck just below the heart by a pitched ball in an amateur baseball game yesterday and died in ten minutes.

SOCCER SHOTS

BETHLEHEM in defeating the Rovers in the semi-final American Cup game demonstrated its superiority over the local team. In this result victory they scored three clear goals.

FALL RIVER ROVERS were successful in scoring one goal against Bethlehem, which shows that the champions' defence is not as impregnable as it is thought. Captain Swords as usual was successful in getting the ball by Duncan, the champions' goalie.

* * *

FORE RIVER, by defeating New Bedford has earned it way to the semi-final State Cup series, and must now play the U. S. M. A. F. C. for the honors of competing with the Lynn Forse for the championship.

* * *

BARNES of New Bedford scored the first goal for his opponents on a miskick, putting the Fore Rivers in the lead at the end of the first half. Woods playing at centre forward was the factor in his team's victory.

* * *

REFEREE George Lambie of Boston again demonstrated his class in the manner he handled the Rovers-Bethlehem game, thus showing what a difference it makes in having a capable old man within the lines.

* * *

LYNN FOSNE had little trouble in trimming Brockton, and in so doing is now the champion team in the Boston and District League, thus keeping the Grieves Cup in Lynn another year, succeeding the General Electrics.

FITZ NOW ON TOP IN N. L.

Braves' Utility Man New Swat Leader in Parent Body—Gowdy and Hoblitzel Rank High Up.

"PEPPER" Fitzpatrick, the Braves' clever utility player, who, though an infielder by rights, appears just as much at home in the suburbs as when stationed in the inner works, is the National League's new swat leader. In ten games Fitzpatrick has batted .438.

Among the Boston regulars Hoblitzel, .295, is high for the Red Sox, and Gowdy, .318, on top for the Braves. Gardner is swatting .288 and is the only other Carrigamite listed in the .250 club, which affords plenty of evidence why the World Beaters are not higher up in the race.

FOOD FOR SPORT FANS

THE PEACE ADVOCATE.

He wept and said: "it grieves me sore
To see men shed their ruddy gore,
And lose their arms and ears and feet
And suffer under snare and sleet,
Or perish on the sprouting grass
Beneath a cloud of poison gas.
It grieves me sore to see men die
Who love their lives as well as I.
I wish this cruel war would cease—
I am for peace! I am for peace!
To ease the anguish in his frame
He went to see a baseball game.
And, ere an hour had passed, he oped
A bottle of the umpire's head.

He wore a Spring suit, a straw hat and low shoes. Over his left arm he carried a Winter overcoat, and in his right mitt he bore a grimacit, containing a fur cap, a pair of earmuffs, a sweater, a pair of rubber boots and a footwarmer. "I believe in preparedness," he said, "I am going to attend a ball game."

Stage Set for Gala Meet of Coast Cracks Coming

By JOHN W. MORAN JR.

A MAJORITY of the experts having considered the coming track and field meet of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America from every angle have decided Cornell will triumph once more. They consider that the wonderfully well balanced team, which Jack Moakley manages to whip together each year, can come to Cambridge and sweep all before it.

They consider that while Cornell will not win any overwhelming number of firsts, its athletes will finish second, third, fourth and fifth often enough to give the Ithicans the greatest number of points when all are totalled. And it may be, and yet again so it may not be. Others have the impression Yale can come through and yet others look for the Leland Stanford team to win.

As the matter stands today almost one of the several teams can come through with a win in the meet. Cornell, however, has the edge, because of the presence on Moakley's team this year of a majority of those who won points for him a year ago and who can be counted upon to win points again this year. Few if any of the teams have been improved since the games were held on Franklin Field, Philadelphia.

It is to the presence of the California shot put artist, Lelan Stanford, for from Leland Stanford a well-rounded team will come while from the University of California eleven men are on hand. A peculiar feature of the latter team is the fact that ten of its members are field men, its only track man being a hurdler.

LELAND STANFORD DUE.

The University of California team has already arrived in Boston and is quartered at the Westminster. Leland Stanford is expected along tomorrow, inasmuch as it made the trip across the continent by easy stages rather than coming direct. Saturday Leland Stanford stopped off at Ann Arbor, and engaged in a dual meet with the University of Michigan, which was won by the Wolverines.

Though losing, the California men demonstrated they are a very formidable combination and one which will bother allcomers, any team entered in the Intercollegiates. Wilson, their miler, covered in 4:19 Saturday and while approaching that time next Saturday should come dangerously close to winning.

Without question the greatest interest Saturday will centre around Ted Meredith, Pennsylvania's famous middle distance man, who will compete in both the quarter and half-mile runs. Only two weeks ago Meredith set a new world's record for the half and that mark will be tackled by him Saturday in an effort to set it even lower.

AFTER NEW QUARTER MARK.

However, that won't be his only effort, for he hopes to shatter the 48-second mark for the quarter, which he established a year ago on Franklin Field. In the minds of a majority of those observers of the sport he is capable of lowering both records; in fact, most fans even think him capable of reaching "Mauri" Lyons's mark of 47 3-5 seconds for the quarter scored a year ago.

When Meredith negotiated the quarter in 48 seconds a year ago he equalled the mark set by Charley Reidpath of Syracuse, on Franklin Field, in 1912. Saturday the man to chase him will unquestionably be Mercersburg Willcox, of Harvard, who did 48 seconds in the dual meet with Yale last year. Moore and Richardson of Princeton, Grimm and Shelton of Cornell, Riley of Dartmouth and Biddle and Pennypacker of Harvard will be the others to fight it out for points in this event.

Some might argue that Meredith won't start in both events, but when it is recalled this will be his last year in competition for Penn., they can plainly see he will double-lose go after the two marks mentioned. When Meredith set the world's half-mile mark at 1:52 1-5 in the dual meet with Cornell, two weeks ago, L. V. Widnagle of Cornell was less than three yards behind.

Saturday Widnagle will chase him once more, and, in addition, Bill Bingham, Harvard track captain, will be in the race. Bingham turned the quarter in 1:54 2-5 at the Harvard-Cornell dual games and can go faster. He and Widnagle will have an exceptionally brilliant race for second place and on their efforts will depend the question of whether or not Meredith letters his world's mark.

OVERTON IN SHORT RACE.

There is the possibility Jimmy Overton of Yale may go in the quarter, but it is only a possibility. Though entered in the event, the chances are strong Johnny Mack will reserve him for the mile and two-mile runs. Reports from New Haven are to the effect Overton can do 1:53 in the quarter. Murphy of Michigan, Brown of Tech and Beckwith and Taylor of Cornell are the others who figure in this race.

Wins by Meredith in these two events would give Pennsylvania ten points, while Cornell will gather a few if Widnagle runs second in the half and either Beckwith or Taylor gets fourth or fifth.

Grimm and Shelton will be relied upon by Moakley to get him two or three points in the quarter. Harvard should annex four in the quarter, at least, and either three or four will come its way in the half.

BECK DENIES HE'LL PITCH FOR TIGERS

New York, May 22.—Donald Beck, Columbia's star left-handed pitcher, denied yesterday that he had signed a contract to play with the Detroit Tigers at the end of the college season, although it was announced officially by President Navin of the Detroit Club on Friday that his signature had been obtained to a contract.

Those who know Beck profess to believe that he has promised to sign a Detroit contract and has made his promise as ironclad as possible, although he has not yet signed the instrument itself, because he does not desire to jeopardize his amateur standing at Columbia until the season is over.

SHERIFF PROHIBITS SUNDAY BALL GAME

Troy, N. Y., May 22.—As a result of a protest filed by the Law and Order Department of the New York State Law and Order League, the Sunday game between the Troy and Wilkesbarre State League teams was not played.

The Sheriff received the complaint that Sunday baseball games to which admissions are charged are against the law and notified the Troy management.

EDDIE HEARNE IN FRONT.

Columbus, O., May 22.—Eddie Hearne won the 100-mile auto Derby on the one-mile dirt track here, postponed from Saturday, with William Ehmcke second. Hearne's time was 1h. 41m. 15 2-5s.

HUBBARD IS IN CHARGE.

HOT LINERS

By FRANK G. MENKE

WALTER JOHNSON staged that old drama "Revenge is Sweet" against the Indians. He pitched his team to victory and batted in the winning run.

* * *

THE West, outside of the Indians, who are leading the American League, is not showing much class. All the Eastern teams, with the exception of the Athletics, are in the first division.

* * *

FAR be it from us to praise the Giants. But any team that can win eleven straight in enemy country and jump from last place to fourth in less than two weeks deserves some mention.

FRANK KRAMER seems to improve with age. The champion bicycle rider is going after the longer distances races and won the ten-mile open at Newark yesterday.

THE Newark Internationals, who jumped way out in front early in the season, have been brought back with a sudden check, losing four games to Montreal in two days.

STAGING a belated rally, the Phillies trimmed the Chicagoes by batting in four runs in the ninth.

TYLER shut out the Cardinals and won the game for the Braves with a double, sending two men across.

Bike Stars Ready for Opening at Revere Track

The bike lid will be pried off at the Revere Cycle Track Wednesday night, when the same program carded for last night, and prevented by the inclement weather, will be presented by Manager Nat Butler.

The main event, a twenty-five-mile motor-paced race, will have as contestants Victor Linart, the world's champion; George Wiley, one of America's foremost representatives at the middle-distance game, and Bobby Walthour, a tried and true veteran who still can reel off miles in close to world's record time. In addition there will be open handicap races in both amateur and professional ranks.

After Memorial Day races will be held twice a week, on Wednesday and Saturday evenings. There will also be the usual holiday races throughout the season.

Today and tomorrow will be busy days for Wiley, Linart and Walthour. Rain played havoc with their practice last week and they intend to ram into the next two days as much work as possible.

KRAMER WHIPS FIELD OF FORTY

New York, May 22.— Frank Kramer's racing once more was the features at the Velodrome in Newark, Riding before 10,000 people, Kramer won the ten-mile open for professionals from a field of over forty cyclists. Jake Magin was second, Reggie Memaca third, Eddie Madden fourth and Alf Grenda fifth.

Bob Spears beat Alf Goullet in two straight heats of a two-third-mile match race. The Brassard race at one mile between Frank Cavanagh and Jackie Clark was won by Cavanagh.

BOSTON PAIR LOSE OUT.

Tuxedo Park, N. J., May 22.—G. M. Church and Dean Mathey, the Princeton pair, are the winners of the Tuxedo doubles cups. In the finals in the round robin tennis doubles they defeated N. W. Niles and A. S. Dabney, of Boston, holders of the cups for three consecutive years, 6—3, 6—2.

MISS BJURSTEDT WINNER

New York, May 22.—Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the tennis champion, with Theodore R. Pell as her partner, won the mixed doubles final of the Metropolitan championship, West Side Tennis Club, from Mrs. R. F. Weaver and Charles M. Hall, Jr., 12-10, 4-6, 6-4.

BOSTON FENCER IS OUT.

New York, May 22.—A. Chaumann of Boston failed to score in the Amateur Fencers League of America bouts large that Pennsylvania and Yale are the only ones that use foilsplay.

Courtney will make every effort this week to put men in his boat that will keep an even keel and thus be able to apply their power to advantage.

TIGERS LOOK BEST

Only Syracuse Will Stand in Way If Spaeth's Crew Beats Cornell and Yale.

By DR. WALTER PEET.

The end of the preliminary rowing season will be seen next Saturday when Princeton, Cornell and Yale meet in first varsity eight-oared shells on Cayuga Lake.

The summary of the varsity situation chronologically to date is as follows: Princeton beat Harvard by a slight margin; Pennsylvania won handily from Yale and was in turn outrowed by the Naval Academy.

The Tigers got away quite easily with the Childs cup, the order being Princeton, Naval Academy, Columbia and Pennsylvania, with the boats pretty well strung out.

Last Saturday Harvard defeated Cornell, while Syracuse was rolling away from the Midshipmen. This analysis shows Princeton and Syracuse to be all to the good, with Yale at the bottom of the list.

The affair at Ithaca will be the last race of the season for the New Jersey men. If they can keep on edge and row in the form that they have shown all Spring they will probably win.

In writing in the Princetonian a story of the Childs cup race, Dr. Spaeth, rowing coach and professor of English, distinguenously said in effect that if his pupils worked hard and corrected a lot of their faults they might make good up in New York State.

If they decisively defeat Cornell and Yale, and if Syracuse should win at Poughkeepsie, as is possible, there will be no way of determining America's best boat load.

It is a pity that these two rarely good crews should not get together before the Carnegie Lake lads disband. Ten Eyck has a great crew and Dr. Spaeth and his able assistant, Fitzpatrick, make a most efficient working combination.

All of the Boston crews have had shake-ups, the most radical having been in the Columbia and Pennsylvania boats. Jim Rice, the Blue and White's coach, who by the way is sorely handicapped by lack of material, may be able to pull together a combination that will be up toward the front at the end of the season.

Joe Wright's Quakers are rowing on proper fundamental principles, but the absence of swivel row locks is against them and in this connection, in looking over the relative standing of the crews, the significant fact

FIELD OF 58 SEEK TITLE

A PARTICULARLY brilliant field of women golfers teed off in the qualifying round in the annual championship tournament on the links of the Country Club this morning.

There were fifty-eight entrants and they were carded to start in pairs, commencing at 10 o'clock, and continuing going out at five-minute intervals until the last team tees off at 12:20 p. m.

Miss Vera Ramsay of Salem, who clothed Boston golfdom by winning this event last year from Miss Margaret Curtis, former national champion, is again in the field.

The first pair to tee off, promptly at 10 o'clock, were Mrs. E. W. Daley, Oak Hill, and Miss A. D. Rogers, Cheswick Hill. They were followed at 10:05 by Miss L. A. Wells, the Country Club, and Miss F. C. McCarthy, Woodland.

Johnny Griffiths, the Akron, O., lightweight, who has been one of the Middle West's clickiest pugilists stoppers of late for months, makes his Boston bow tomorrow night in the windup event at the Arena. His opponent is to be Willie Beecher, the long New York boxer, who gave Johnny Harvey, also from Big Broadway, a hard lacing in the same ring early in the season.

Bernie Strapp is bringing Griffiths East. He sends words to the AMERICAN that while the welt under Griffiths' left eye is painful, the confident it will not be his last. States Strapp, among other things: "I expect Griffiths to make a big hit with the fans. He never stalls! is exceptionally clever and owns about the fastest left hand in the world."

Griffiths, claims Strapp, has been to the post sixty-five times and has yet to have a decision go against him. He is generally credited with having shaded Hoo Tenzie Welsh out West, not once but twice, and also two newspaper clippings in years to that effect say he has done the same to Jimmy Jones, Joe Shugrue, Joe Azevedo, Joe Mandel, Johnny Harvey, Jack Britton and Milburn Saylor among other topliners.

Likewise has Griffiths gone to a ten-round draw with Willie Ritchie and to Brooklyn last August, he gave Izzy Cruz the decision that started the New York Hebrew on his road to ruin.

In 1924 Griffiths toured Australia and while there went twenty rounds on a draw with Dave Mc Kay, who is rated as a first class and stopped Hughie Mehegan in eight stanzas.

There's no sidestepping Griffiths' accident clause. He's a boy of unquestioned merit and whipped Beecher in their last rumpler, in Ohio, some six weeks ago. That was the booking Villa Rocky ago. That was the booking Villa picked to have coming on to Boston for his stop with Harvey. Beecher came in long fat for his bout with Harvey. He stated to the AMERICAN office, when in the city, that he had trained down to the fighting mat and would be found in fine ring shape when he met Bookmobile, and his manager, Jimmy Bronson, agreed to like fashion.

Griffiths looks like a mighty good bet for tomorrow night's mess. If he fails to stop Beecher it will only be because he suffers ague-fright and fails to work up to his Western standard of late. Beecher has twice-rounded Rumo route a little difficult to stem. Nevertheless the knocking stars may be looking for Griffiths to disappoint. They have hopped Harvey, Beecher's conqueror by and large in their time and proved a thorough set-back for Beecher, and then gave Jimmy Leonard before the Akron's soaps to a very much further advanced.

Eddie Murphy, the South Boston welterweight, and a former star among the lightweights, is very sweet on Griffiths. He saw the Akron Flash in several scraps when out West, and declares that Johnny is as good as any of the topnotch lightweights in the class in a rough pair in the class.

The Arena A. A. members don't want to be disappointed in the bouts for tomorrow night, and with Fox 91, 82 and 83. Irvan opposite and the club is putting on and be prize fight proper.

Rest of the card: Tommy McFarland vs. Charley Beers, eight rounds; "Bob" Hardy vs. Jim Hall, eight rounds, and Jeff Callan vs. Johnny Duncan, six rounds.

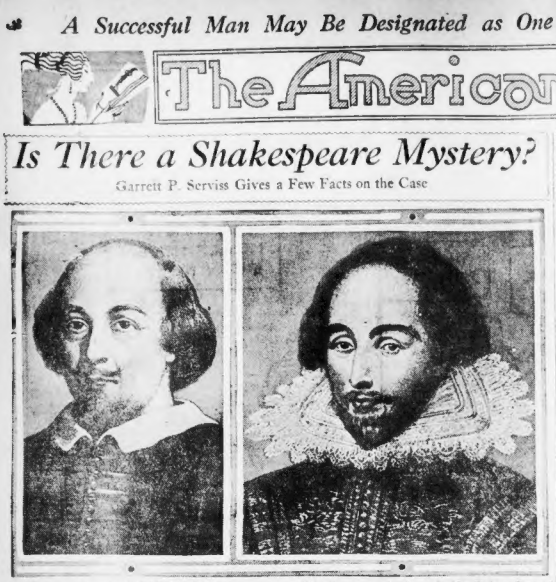
Is There a Shakespeare Mystery?

Garrett P. Serviss Gives a Few Facts on the Case



Shakespeare's portrait in his birthplace — The Jansen portrait owned by Prince Rupert

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

WAS William Shakespeare of Stratford, who died on that English town on April 23, 1616, and whose tercentenary all the English-speaking world, together with all the rest of the world where literary genius is appreciated, has been, and still is, enthusiastically celebrating, the real, or sole, or principal author of the wonderful works that go under his name?

Many good people are shocked at hearing this question asked, as if there were something irreverent and desecrating about it. But this indisposition to have settled beliefs disturbed is a very old phenomenon of human nature, which has often proved to be one of the greatest stumbling blocks in the way of newly discovered truth.

Independent thinking on any subject, outside of the immediate, practical affairs of life, is so irksome to the majority of men and women that they prefer to hold on to what they have been taught, even if its soundness becomes questionable, and they resent any attempt at unsettlement, or correction, as an infringement of their right to peaceful possession of their intellectual property.

They would have the old, comfortable, common law rule of "title by prescription" apply to this moral as well as to the legal world, and would shut out the truth itself if its opposite had, for a sufficiently long time, worn unchallenged the cloak of truth. Many of them even become—and that is the pity of it—abusive toward those who venture to differ from their opinions which they have so long, and usually at second hand, and merely upon "authority," entertained.

WHY NOT AN OPEN MIND?

In the case of the Shakespeare controversy this tendency on the part of those who may be called the conservatives, exhibits too frequently a virulent quality. They denounce everybody who expresses any doubt concerning the validity of the grounds on which the Stratford legend rests as "unlearned," "unread," "ignorant," "silly," "tow-tow meddlers with things that they do not understand," and even as "fools."

There is only one reply to be made to all this inexcusable abuse, and that is that, excluding certain theories based on supposed cryptograms and ciphers alleged to have been inserted by Lord Bacon in the Shakespeare Plays and which I regard the challenges that have been offered to the accepted belief are the result of as broad scholarship and as sound reasoning as have been displayed on the other side.

I do not mean to say that the challengers have established their case; I only say that there appears to be evidence enough to go to the jury. That is a matter for the collective intelligence of educated, unprejudiced, independent minds, sincerely desirous of knowing the truth.

I do not, however, think that this ideal jury should render a verdict upon the strength of the evidence thus far obtained. It should take that evidence into consideration, and should not only demand more, but should aid the investigation with its own efforts. The burden of proof still rests upon the challengers.

I freely confess that I myself am on the fence concerning this question. To be on the fence is not necessarily a disgraceful attitude. It is a proper position for a judge while a case is in progress of development. When a judge gives his decision he gets off the fence—although sometimes it will be found that he is still astride of it.

The strength of the case against Shakespeare of Stratford appears to me to rest largely upon psychological grounds. There is not a single ascertained, undisputed fact known about him which accords with the claim that he was the real author of the plays, sonnets and poems that go under his name.

His conduct during the last five or six years of his life is flatly inconsistent with that claim. In his correspondence, in connection with his fellow townsmen, and in his deeds and his will and testament, he made no reference to, and showed no interest in, the marvelous works accredited to him. If he had no books, he had no writings, except legal papers concerning his property, and notes for petty sums of money that he had lent.

SOME OF THE FACTS.

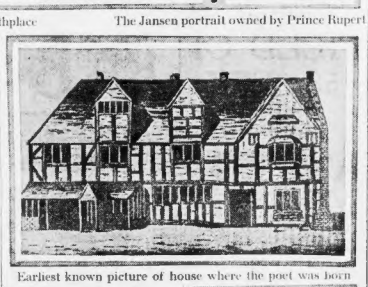
The made no attempt to collect or publish the wonderful dramas. At the time of his death nobody in Stratford referred to the passing of a marvelous genius, and in London practically no attention was paid to his death. His educational history is unknown. He lived in Stratford until he was twenty-one, or twenty-three years old, and then disappeared.

Stratford was a common English village of the sixteenth century, inhabited by illiterate people (Shakespeare's own father could not write his name). It had a grammar school, but it is not proved that Shakespeare ever attended it, although that may be left to inference.

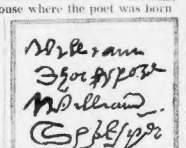
After his disappearance nothing is known of him, with certainty, until from five to seven years later, when, with great suddenness, the first poems and plays under his name began to appear. He was a country boy, brought up amid humble and illiterate companions and surroundings, but from the very start the works put forth under his name showed wide knowledge and familiarity with the books, ideas, customs and the life of the highest and most cultivated society in England, and, indeed, throughout Western Europe.

He was represented continually amid the scenes of courts and palaces, and appeared as the thought of kings, queens and great noblemen. Where did he get his knowledge and his training?

The only reply made is that his genius sufficed for all this! Nobody can go beyond me in faith in the power of genius, but genius cannot create facts. And if Shakespeare possessed this supreme genius, how account for the fact that no gleam of it showed in his later years, after he had retired, at the early age of forty-seven, to Stratford, to enjoy the money he had accumulated from his investments in London theatres?



Earliest known picture of house where the poet was born



Two of Shakespeare's known five signatures

How did it happen that no collection of his works was published until seven years after his death, and whence came the previously unknown and unpublished passages that appeared in some of the plays years after he was in his grave?

These are only a few of the puzzling questions that have arisen concerning Shakespeare. One more should be added. Until this year, 1916, it was supposed that no serious question had been raised concerning the authorship of the works of Shakespeare until about the middle of the nineteenth century, but on March 19 last there turned up in New York an old volume, printed in London in 1769, wherein Shakespeare is accused of filching from Lord Bacon.

The only evident importance of this is that it carries back the doubt about Shakespeare's death, and the nature of the book referred to, an allegory, indicates that the subject was not a novel one even then.

As to Lord Bacon, I do not believe that he did, or could, write the dramas or poems of Shakespeare. But it is possible that he may have furnished many of the facts, ideas, reflections and expressions that appear in them, and that other hands, including Shakespeare's, were concerned in the work. Go to a library, read all the literature that has accumulated on this subject—both sides—and see what you can make of it.

Making a Bargain

A village clergyman, walking round his parish, met an old parishioner. "Well, John," he said "how is it I have not seen you at church for several Sundays?"

"Hain't got no Sunday trousers," answered John.

"Well," said the clergyman, "I think we can remedy that. I have a pair at home which will just about fit you, and I will have them sent to you today."

"Thank 'ee, sir," said John.

The trousers were duly sent, and the following three Sundays John was seen at church. On the fourth being absent for some time, the clergyman called to see him.

"Well, John," he said, "you have an excuse for not coming to church lately. How is it I have not seen you there?"

"Lost here, parson!" said John. "I like a man to speak plain. I know what you mean; you're thinking about them trousers. I come to church three Sundays, an' if you don't think I earned them trousers, just tell me how many more Sundays I shall ha' to come afore they're mine altogether!"

The Struggles of a Wife

Grace Asks Her Mother Not to Buy Her Any New Dresses for Her Outing

By Virginia Terhune Van De Water.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Copyright, 1916, Star Company

ALTHOUGH Grace Webbe considered Lawrence was as rapid as could be expected, the exhausted inactivity irked the girl terribly.

Dr. Horton had insisted upon early hours and had forbidden any social events. This prohibition was unnecessary, for most of the Webbes' acquaintances had left town for the heated term. As during the first Summer after her father's failure in business, the days dragged drearily for the girl.

She was desperately shocked to a letter from Miss Letson asking her if she would consider taking her former position as teacher again in the fall. Grace replied immediately, by wire, declining.

"Of course, the idea of teaching is abhorrent to me just now," she told her mother. "Yet the prospect of doing nothing and of making no money for myself is still more painful than the thought of daily drudgery."

Myra smiled. "When you are really well again, dear," she soothed, "you will enjoy life just as much as you ever did."

"Maybe so," the girl rejoined sluggishly. "But it is certainly deadly dull just now."

To the mother life seemed all too strenuous. Much had to be crowded into the short period before she and the invalid could leave town. She must get ahead with her copying; for her typewriter was to be packed and shipped to The Heights so that it might be in the hotel by the time she reached there.

Far even up in the mountains she must fill her orders. Otherwise how to pay for the sojourn there and for the many expenses that would meet her upon her return to New York in September?

Grace must be amused in spite of all these duties. In obedience to her physician's orders she strolled every day into Morningside Park and sat there for an hour. As she disliked to go alone, her mother accompanied her. Myra did not intimate to her daughter that time taken from her desk in the daylight hours must be made up after dark.

SHE HAD TO WORK HARD.

In the evening she would take her typewriter into the dining room that the sound of its clicking might not disturb her husband and daughter, and after closing the door tightly she would work far into the night. Once Horace voiced a protest.

"You are overdoing, Myra," he objected.

"I can't help it," she said.

Couldn't he understand how much money would be needed for the trip to the mountains? The thought came to her suddenly that perhaps it was her own fault that he did not understand. Well, then, she would enlighten him.

"I asked Dr. Horton to send in his bill," she informed him, "and I have paid all but twenty-five dollars of it."

"There was no need of such haste, was there?" her husband queried.

Not a word of gratitude at her doing this, she noticed. He took such things for granted. Yes—she had brought about this state of affairs herself and yet she had done it all to help him.

She did not know that her tone was sharp, nor that the strain of the past few weeks was showing itself in her manner as she replied to Horace's questions.

"Certainly there was reason for such haste. It worries me to have an unpaid bill hanging over me."

"I hope," Horace said, as if answering an implied challenge, "that you do not fancy I mean to give you nothing toward yours and Grace's outing. When you are ready to go I will buy your tickets for you, and I will also hand you fifty dollars. I wish I could do more," he added, despondently, "but I can't—that is, not just now."

"You are very kind," she murmured.

She did not mean to be ungracious, yet at that instant she could make no more cordial acknowledgment. Why could he not express in words do well as in this promised deed his appreciation of her efforts? Fifty dollars; that indeed would be a great help. And yet there would be the hotel bills and extras for two people for one month in a fashionable Summer resort.

Well, never mind; she would pay them herself, without help from anybody.

MANY THINGS TO BUY.

She wished that she could get a few Summer dresses for Grace, and said as much to her daughter the next day.

"I don't want you to get me a thing," the girl exclaimed. "I have had lots of time for thinking lately, mother—during these days since my illness. I am a dead weight and a loss to you and father just now. My illness has cost you both a lot of money."

"Oh, my dear!" Myra protested.

There was a flush on her face and a tremor in her tone that the girl noticed. With her father's dislike of a "scene," she spoke coldly.

"Since this is true," she continued, "it is not fair for me to use father's money for new clothes when I have old ones that will do."

"But I would not use your father's money if I bought them for me," Myra began, then checked herself.

"It is the same thing exactly," Grace said, ignoring her companion's confession. "If you got things for me, father would have to pay for something else that you would have paid for. You and he are one, mother; so let's say nothing more about the matter. My last Summer's dresses are whole and decent, if not fashionable. I shall always be poor, and I may as well dress to the part."

How gloomy the child was! the mother mused; and how much like her father! Of course it was natural that, now that Grace could not work, nor play, but must sit and think for hours at a time, she should turn such matters over in her mind.

Although the conversation ended here, Myra Webbe felt as if her daughter had reproved her for an imperiously unbecoming a woman of mature years. She had often had the same feeling in talking with Grace's father.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HOW CAN HE BE HAPPY WITH YOU?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a stenographer earning $18 a week and really extravagant. I am very fond of a young man of my own age—twenty-five—who is earning $23 a week, and who has two more years to complete his studies at law school. He has asked me to become his wife, and, while I know that I can never honestly love a man who is not better situated financially, I have given him my promise to consider myself engaged, and he contemplates marriage with me soon.

Do you think it wise for me to marry this young man, who, while he is very poor, has only about $200 in the bank, has, I think, a promising future? Do you think I could be happy with this man on his small wage?

ROSE.

SINCE your idea of "honest love" seems to be exactly the opposite of the accepted standard of fine feeling, I think the man who wins you is going to be the loser. The loser. Don't marry because you feel that if you give up this man you will never have another chance. That is what I suspect as the real reason for your confession of him. As long as money is the standard by which you measure him and you pride yourself on your extravagance, don't do any man the injustice to become his wife. You are not going to prove a wife to any man—unless your point of view changes and money ceases being all-important to you.

TELL YOUR SISTER

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My sister has known a young man for two years, but as I was absent from home I never met him. Now I met this young man through a flirtation over the telephone. After meeting him in town, he asked me not to mention to my sister that I knew him. After several appointments he has asked me to elope with him. I am sixteen, and although I have known this young man but two months I love him dearly.

KATRINE.

YOU poor, foolish little girl, you have failed utterly in loyalty to your own sister, and you have given a man who seems to have no personal standards of honor every reason to think that you are of his own calibre. Be loyal enough to your own sister to confess your wrong-doing and fully to her, and have nothing more to do with a young man who has shown plainly that he is not the sort to be, "on the level" with any girl. He would be no more loyal to you than he has been to her. You are far too young to think of marriage. But to any event take my word for it that once you do he would never be so honorable as to marry one he are involved in a dangerous situation, and you must save yourself at once.

Not Abashed

The drama was in full swing, when the impassioned rantings of Theophilus Jones, the seedy hero, were interrupted by the boomings of a rude urchin in the "gods."

This was an outrage that could not be allowed to go unchecked, even in the midst of a tragedy.

Pausing in his speech, and advancing to the footlights, Theophilus addressed his audience: "Ladies and gentlemen," he hissed, "five years ago I lost a monkey, and it has turned up here tonight in the gallery."

The applause that greeted this brilliant remark had hardly died away when the voice of the small boy rose on the air.

"What did you do with the organ?" it asked blandly.

In Our Wonderful World

To the ordinary man matches are quite inconsiderable, since he thinks of them by the box, so often obtained for nothing—or next to it. But it was less than a century ago that one John Walker, an apothecary, of Stockton-on-Tees, found the release of the smoker from the tinder-box or the live coals in the grate. It was an accidental spilling of the solution that took fire that gave the hint, and not long afterwards, in 1827, he placed on the market his boxes of matches—lucifers—containing fifty each, at one shilling. They lighted on sandpaper. But he neglected to patent his invention, and the Reading schoolmaster, Isaac Holden, who a little later on hit on the same idea, made the same mistake. It was not long before the "look of matches" fell to a penny, and finally was given away to the purchaser of tobacco.

All through the year wheat is being harvested. In January it is being cut in the great fields of the Argentine and in New Zealand. In February and March it is cut in the East Indies and Egypt. The wheat fields of Japan, interested in April in Cyprus, Asia Minor, Persia and Cuba, and in May in China and Japan. June is the busiest harvest month of the whole year, for then Turkey, Greece, Spain and Southern France, as well as most of the Southern States of America, are all cutting wheat. The more northerly States of America, as well as Australia, Germany, parts of Russia, do their harvest gathering in July. August sees the bulk of crop gathered in Great Britain, and September and October for Sweden and Norway. Peru and South Africa are busy harvesting in November and December.

In proportion to size, man is one of the weakest animals on the earth. The muscles of a large-sized oyster will support a weight of thirty-seven pounds. There is a crab that will lift 452 times its own weight. This is the equivalent of an average-sized man raising 75,000 pounds. Felix Flutean, a Belgian scientist, who made many experiments, found that the strength of a fly which was able to lift a matchstick compared with a man's supporting with his feet a beam 14 feet long and 2 feet 6 inches square. There is a little bug that can drag six matches, equivalent to a man's pulling 350 beams as big as himself. To measure the strength of insects Flutean constructed delicate harness attached to a weighing machine. By prodding the insects he made them move. Then he piled on weights until they stopped. By this means he found that a bee, weight for weight, was thirty times as strong as a horse.

DALLINGER SEES DANGER IN FILM CENSOR BILL

Washington, May 22.—Much opposition is being shown in Congress to the House bill which provided a censorship for motion pictures.

Congressman Frederick W. Dallinger of Massachusetts has expressed himself as being emphatically opposed to the measure, and, at the request of the other dissenting members of the Committee on Education, he drafted the minority report.

In an authorized statement he opposes the bill as being an unwarranted restriction which attacks the constitutional rights of free speech.

Representative Dallinger's statement is as follows:

There is nobody who is more bitterly opposed than I am to the exhibition of indecent and immoral pictures. I believe, however, as is pointed out in the minority report, that the proper exercise of the existing police power of the several States, supplemented by an amendment to the Federal Criminal Code prohibiting the interstate transportation of objectionable films, is more than adequate to remedy any evils that may exist.

That the regulation of local amusements by national legislation is entirely unnecessary and unjustifiable, is, in my opinion, too plain for argument.

Having been engaged all my life in reform work, I cannot understand how the official representatives of organizations which are striving to remedy some of the evils in our American life can advocate this legislation. From the beginning of time the most effective weapon of reform has been the portrayal of the evils of existing conditions, whether that portrayal has been by word of mouth, as in the days of the Prophets, through the printed page of poet and novelist, by means of the artist's canvas or upon the stage.

The motion picture art affords the most effective means of propaganda yet devised, and to cripple its usefulness as is proposed by this bill would be most unfortunate and dangerous."

The effect of Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin," in bringing home to the American people the evils of human slavery, is a matter of history. How much more quickly and more effectively the same result would have been accomplished if the moving picture art had been in existence at that time.

And yet does anyone doubt if such had been the case and a Federal Censorship Board had been in existence with the slave power in control of the National government, that the film depicting the scenes portrayed in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" would have been refused a license on the specious ground that it was inhuman and tended to corrupt morals?

I am firmly convinced that if this bill should become a law it is not only possible but extremely probable that under some conditions, a motion picture film, setting forth the need of national preparedness or portraying the evils of the white slave traffic, of intemperance and even of child-labor might be refused a license.

In my opinion those who are interested in progress and reform are the very ones who should be most vitally interested in keeping absolutely free from arbitrary control this latest and most powerful instrument of free thought expression.

The enactment of the Alien and Sedition Laws utterly destroyed the great Federalist party in the early days of the republic. These laws, however merely punished the author of objectionable written or spoken words after they were written or uttered and then only after a trial by jury.

This bill seeks to set up in this country pre-publicity censorship, one of the most effective instruments of European military despotism, and I cannot believe that any political party is willing to assume the responsibility for its enactment.

Everybody Who Can Should March in the Great Preparedness Parade

THE great parade in behalf of preparedness which is to occur on the 27th of May, in Boston, ought to arouse the interest of every real American in New England. It will signalize the awakening of this community to the danger in which we have been living so many years.

This movement ought to command the interest, the assistance and the participation of all groups of all shades of opinion. If those who are for peace above all would pause a moment to look through their obsession to the realities of the world they would become as interested and enthusiastic in behalf of preparedness as any other class of citizens. If they would consider world facts they would understand that there can no more be international peace in the world without police power to maintain it than there could be municipal peace without police power to maintain that boon to civilization.

Abolish our police force, abolish the vigilance committees which would immediately take its place, let it be known by announcement or inaction that the laws and justice would not be maintained by force, if necessary, and how long would the persons or the property of any community be safe?

The folly of those who oppose preparedness because they are peace men is that they do not look at facts as they exist, but persist in assuming that the things that they WANT to be true ARE true. The agreement for The Hague Peace Tribunal was merely a "scrap of paper" because there existed behind the peace tribunal no power to enforce its decrees. There is no court in the land, international or municipal, civil or criminal, that can be useful without the knowledge on the part of the men subject to its jurisdiction that the necessary force is behind its decrees.

In the readjustment of world conditions which ought to grow out of this havoc in Europe there must come the establishment of an international court with military power to enforce its decrees—a court backed by the military power of the nations which have supported it, a military power sufficient to compel recalcitrant and belligerent nations, desiring to break the peace, to submit their disputes to its consideration and to bow to its judgment.

If America is going to play its part in the establishment and maintenance of a world peace it must play its part in the maintenance of that military police force which will be necessary to enforce the peace of the world. We cannot in this country expect to do nothing but talk peace and still contribute something substantial toward peace. While human nature continues to be frail we must have power behind all righteous judgments, and we can no more expect an international tribunal to keep the peace of Europe without power behind it than we can expect any court in any community to enforce its decrees without the policeman, the sheriff, the militia and the United States army, if necessary, to uphold the court.

We forget that the decrees of the civil court are not obeyed merely because they are just. Not one litigant in a hundred loses his case without believing that an injustice has been done him, and not one litigant in fifty would submit to the judgment of the court if he did not know that this judgment could and would be enforced against him. The physical power behind the civil court is not in evidence, so we forget that it is as much a part of the court as the judge and the jury. Ex-President Roosevelt recently well said:

"The only way successfully to oppose wrong backed by might is to set over against it RIGHT backed by might."

Let us all unite, then, to make this parade the greatest parade that New England has ever known. Let everybody who has time consider it his patriotic duty to find his place in the line of march carrying an American flag.

Those who want us to prepare because they believe that we are in danger without preparation, because they have seen what DID happen to Belgium, which was NOT prepared, and did NOT happen to Switzerland, which WAS prepared; because they have seen the miserable incompetence which the unprepared British army has exhibited during this war compared with the splendid achievements of the German and French armies—let those men fall into line.

And let those men who believe that the country is not in danger, who were blind to the lessons of Belgium and Great Britain and to the lessons of our own war of 1812 and the Civil War, let them fall into line, too, because they want universal peace, and they ought to know that it cannot be maintained without power behind the peace tribunal, and because they want this country to play its part—a part proportioned to its ability in the establishment of permanent peace throughout the world, a part which we cannot play without contributing our share of the military police power that shall enforce the great peace-making judgment of some great international peace tribunal.

EVERYBODY FALL INTO LINE!

The Governor on Civil Service Reform

GOVERNOR McCALL spoke like a statesman in his special message on the extension of civil service law. The members of the Legislature will make no mistake if they follow the Governor's lead in this matter.

Civil service is a very great and useful reform in the politics of this country. It does not always work with perfection. It sets up many inequalities. It is often annoying to men who have the best interest of the public at heart. But, on the whole, its advantages greatly outweigh its disadvantages, and it should be extended as far and as fast as the circumstances will permit.

We cannot have public ownership and operation of the great public service corporations in this country until we have civil service reform. We cannot have many other great reforms until they are preceded by a civil service reform.

Thanks from Navy Yard Commandant

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Now that the successful celebration of Navy Day has passed and we are already looking forward to the plans to be made for Navy Day next year, I want to express to you on behalf of myself, the officers and enlisted men of the yard and station and of the ships at the yard, and of the officers and members of the Massachusetts Auxiliary of the Navy Relief Society, our very warm and deep appreciation of the splendid co-operation and courtesy shown by you in assisting us toward the fruition of our desires and plans for last Saturday.

The result, both from a financial standpoint and from that of the high class of American citizens who were at the yard on Saturday, is a self-evident demonstration of the interest taken by the citizenry of Massachusetts and neighboring States in the Navy.

It is my belief that at no other yard has the local organization of the Navy Relief Society been met as courteously and sincerely as has been the Massachusetts Auxiliary in its dealings with the people of Boston during the past three weeks.

Again assuring you of my deep appreciation, I am,

Very sincerely yours,

W. A. BUSH,

May 19, 1916. Captain, U. S. Navy, Commandant.

Once-Overs

Cut down your small expenditures.

It is the quarters and dimes here and there which go for things you do not need that make the drain on your income.

It is not ten and fifteen dollar items which keep you financially tight.

Get in the habit of checking your desire to spend small amounts, and you will be surprised at how soon you will have a bank account.

HAS IT EVER HAPPENED TO YOU?

Humanitarian Cult Doing Great Work

Its 16,000 Members Not Only Relieving Distress of Needy, but Are Uplifting Themselves by Practising Constantly Their Religion of Love and Kindness.

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1916, by the Star Company.

THE land which gave birth to Tolstoi possesses an atmosphere which seems to breed genius. On every hand we hear it, see it, and find it in our midst. A young Russian boy is now attracting the attention of the musical world with his marvellous achievements at the age of fifteen, and he is but one of many whose genius is expressed through the medium of music.

Misha Applebaum, the founder and leader of the Humanitarian Cult, is a young Russian, whose head above the ears looks like the busts of Shakespeare, and whose wonderful mentality has turned in the direction of humanitarianism.

Born in Russia in comparative wealth, sudden reverses left this young man when a youth dependent upon his own resources. In four years he passed through many positions. These experiences were in America, whither the young man had come to seek his fortune.

On the 9th of November, 1914, Mr. Applebaum went to the owner of a motion picture theatre and had a talk with him. After he had finished he gave the young man the free use of his house. Mr. Applebaum printed circulars and announced a meeting for Sunday morning, and invited forty of his friends. Owing to rain at the hour of the meeting, twenty strangers were prevailed upon to seek shelter in the building, and, to the surprise and delight of Mr. Applebaum, every one ended by joining his band.

Referring to this meeting, he says: "It has always been a question in my mind whether it was I who spoke that day or the spirit of the sweet fragrance of my mother's memory.

The object of the Humanitarian Cult, which was started on that rainy November morning, is to develop between individuals a proper sense of responsibility, to develop a spirit of helping mankind from a sense of love rather than from a sense of duty.

It is against the system of capital, that creates poverty and then, under the cloak of philanthropy, tries to keep its victim from actually starving.

The Cult, which was founded on November 15, 1914, now has a total membership of 16,000.

The object of the Cult is to uplift ourselves, so that we may create an environment that will permit every one to rise to our then uplifted level.

The Humanitarian Cult has no desire to establish any new religion, nor is it interested in the form of religion its members practice. It recognizes only one religion—"Every man's," "The spirit of kindness and love," and consequently is non-sectarian.

It has no officers, and its members belong to the "Four Hundred" as well as to the other extreme, the "down and outers." All are equally welcome.

The founder says: "It does not cost any money to be a member of the Cult. We do not permit collections nor contributions, and we ask that no money be sent to us, so we do not wish to assume the responsibility of returning it.

"We are inclusive, and not exclusive. The only qualification necessary is a desire to be just human and of some assistance to our fellow-men. We do not publish the names of the members nor the names of the applicants for assistance.

"We have up to date relieved 5,777 persons, provided 267 with positions, helped twenty-four ex-convicts and fifteen drunkards—nearly all victims of a faulty economic environment."
